New Terrorism Hits Hong Kong

Time Bomb Wrecks
Government House
In British Colony

HONG KONG (AP) — A time bomb wrecked a rural government meeting house today in the British colony racked by two months of Communist Chinese violence.

In other areas, roving gangs of Communist-led Chinese burned buses, taxis and cars, smashed store fronts and fought police.

Police said the time bomb had been set to explode during a scheduled meeting of the rural advisory committee at Tai Po, an agricultural and fishing market town only six miles south of the Communist Chinese border.

The meeting had been postponed only a few hours earlier. There were no reports of death or injury in the blast, which tore apart the meeting room.

'New Phase'
The explosion hit only a few hours after Colonial Secretary D.R. Holmes had told Hong Kong's legislative committee that the colony "may well be entering a new phase of terrorism."

A dozen buses and cars were splashed with gasoline and set afire in Kowloon, the Chinese city and tourist center across the harbor channel from Hong Kong.

Earlier, police clamped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on the island center of the business and financial district and seat of the colonial government.

With Communist pressure on the British colonial government mounting, the most severe water rationing since 1963 was ordered to conserve the local supply should Peking refuse to resume deliveries of water from the mainland in the fall.

Patrol Streets
Armored police vans filled with riot squads armed with carbines and shotguns, patrolled the streets of Wanchai, North Point, and the Western District — three explosive areas where hit-and-run terrorists have killed a policeman and two civilians, and three rioters have been killed since Sunday.

Harbor ferries, street cars and buses stopped running.
Two-thirds of the colony's public transport never started today. Hundreds of drivers, frightened by attacks against buses and street cars and by Red threats, did not show up for work.

Soviets Halt U. S. Tour by Entertainers

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officials called off a tour of the United States by 250 Russian dancers, singers and musicians because of tension over the Middle East and Vietnam, a source in the Ministry of Culture said today.

"If the international situation changes in a favorable way, then the group might go," the source said.

The Russian Festival of Music and Dance troupe originally had been scheduled to open its tour in New York under the auspices of impresario Sol Hurok. After the Arab-Israeli war, which caused an entire new Soviet-American dispute, the Russians postponed the tour.

In order to make arrangements for theaters and other facilities, Hurok set a new starting date of July 17 without any Soviet assurance that it would be met, the Cultural Ministry source said. Tuesday Hurok's New York office said the Soviet Embassy in Washington had informed it the tour was "postponed indefinitely."

'Similar Acts'
"I am going to Bukavu where similar acts could take place, all the more since the local population is still furious against mercenaries who mutilated there last week," he said.

He said the situation was fairly quiet in Lubumbashi, but the Congolese population feared mercenary attacks. Lubumbashi escaped the mutinous uprisings that raged last week in Bukavu, 650 miles to the north, and in Kisangani, the former Stanleyville.

The Belgian Foreign Ministry, which has a consul general in Lubumbashi, said in Brussels that no reports from its ambassador and consuls in the Congo even suggested that cannibalism had taken place in Lubumbashi or elsewhere in the Congo.

That does not mean such acts did not take place," a spokesman added.

Stalemate Claimed
A Cuban-American pilot who escaped from Kisangani said a stalemate seemed to prevail there with mutineers and loyal troops holding opposite banks of the Congo River.

The pilot for the Congo government's airline, Francisco Alvarez, landed his bullet-scarred DC-3 at Kigali airport Monday night. He told Rwanda authorities he had escaped under heavy fire after being held for five days by white mercenaries and troops from Katanga Province who mutilated after Tshombe was kidnapped in the Spanish Balearic Islands and taken to Algeria.

Alvarez, his French copilot, Georges Lagarrigue, and three passengers, a Belgian, a Spaniard and a Congolese, were jailed on demand of the Congolese Embassy on charges of stealing the plane.

Alvarez told U.S. Embassy officials that about 150 Europeans, including 22 visiting newsmen trapped in Kisangani by the mutiny, were in a hotel under the protection of the mercenaries. He said the mercenaries and mutineers hold that part of Kisangani on the right bank of the Congo River, including the airport and radio station.

He said the Congolese national army was holding the left bank of the river, but at the time he left there seemed to be a stalemate or tacit truce.

Killed in Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Lance Cpl. Jack R. Rush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Rush of Algoma, Wis., was killed in recent action in Vietnam, the Defense Department said Tuesday.

Three Others Injured

Dead on arrival at Tigerton Hospital was Herman H. Hirt, 19, route 2, Tigerton.

Hospitalized are Laverne H. Wendt, 19, route 3, Tigerton, the driver; Michael H. Schertz, 18, route 1, Tigerton, and Irvin J. Arndt, 19, route 2, Tigerton.

Shawano County investigators said the accident occurred at the intersection of a town road and County Trunk EE at Split Rock.

Wendt was attempting to make a left turn, they said, when the car left the road and hit a power pole and the corner of a building.

Hirt was thrown from the car and was pinned under it. A

Froehlich Rubs Defeat into Wound

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Assembly speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, got there first with the most.

In winning the fight to push through the state Assembly the Rogers bill to change the site of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, he was able to hold his troops almost completely in line, while picking up defectors from the Green Bay ranks and driving others into strategic retreat.

Froehlich won his first test vote on the bill authored by Assemblyman William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, four weeks ago in a 48-42 vote.

Tuesday evening he was able to rub the defeat even deeper into the Green Bay lawmakers, on a 55 to 37 vote.

Key to the Froehlich victory, ironically, were Democratic legislators coming to the aid of the Republican leader.

The roll call vote rendered Tuesday shows that Froehlich was able to win 26 Republican votes — including his own — for passage of the measure which he reportedly regards as the most important of the session.

Democrats gave him 29 votes and only 16 from the minority went to Green Bay.

But at least one of the Republican votes was again handed him in a tactical move designed to allow Green Bay area lawmakers to move reconsideration today and slow the transfer of the bill to the battleground in the senate.

Froehlich was able to convince 24 of his caucus mates, therefore, to vote with him on the matter.

But this time Republican caucus chairman Lawrence Johnson of Algoma, could not beat Froehlich within his own party circles. In the earlier key test vote, Johnson was able to outdraw Froehlich in the caucus and win four more votes from the men who had voted to make Froehlich speaker.

This time Johnson won 22 votes — possibly plus the hidden one that was given Froehlich.

The difference Tuesday

Bill Enters Senate on 55-37 Vote

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Picking up unexpected support, the bitterly fought bill to change the chosen site for the northeastern Wisconsin campus of the University of Wisconsin was passed by the Assembly Tuesday night in a vote of 55 to 37.

Although assemblymen spent an hour and a half in heated dispute about the most celebrated neighborhood political issue in current Wisconsin politics, they failed to message the bill to the state Senate immediately.

Green Bay lawmakers, however, declined an opportunity this morning to move for reconsideration of the vote, apparently in an effort to speed the bill to the state Senate, where they expect it will be decisively killed.

They fear that additional delays in sending the bill to the Senate could prevent the allotment of planning funds for the new campus at an August meeting of the State Building Commission.

The vote to send the bill immediately to the Senate had failed to get a required two-thirds majority Tuesday night, passing on a 60-32 roll call. Failure of the Green Bay lawmakers to call for reconsideration today means the bill will go straight to the Senate.

Cancels Decision
The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, and backed ardently by Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, cancels the decision of a site committee in favor of the Shorewood site on the east side of Green Bay and orders the campus to be developed on the site known as the Larsen Farms on the west side of that city.

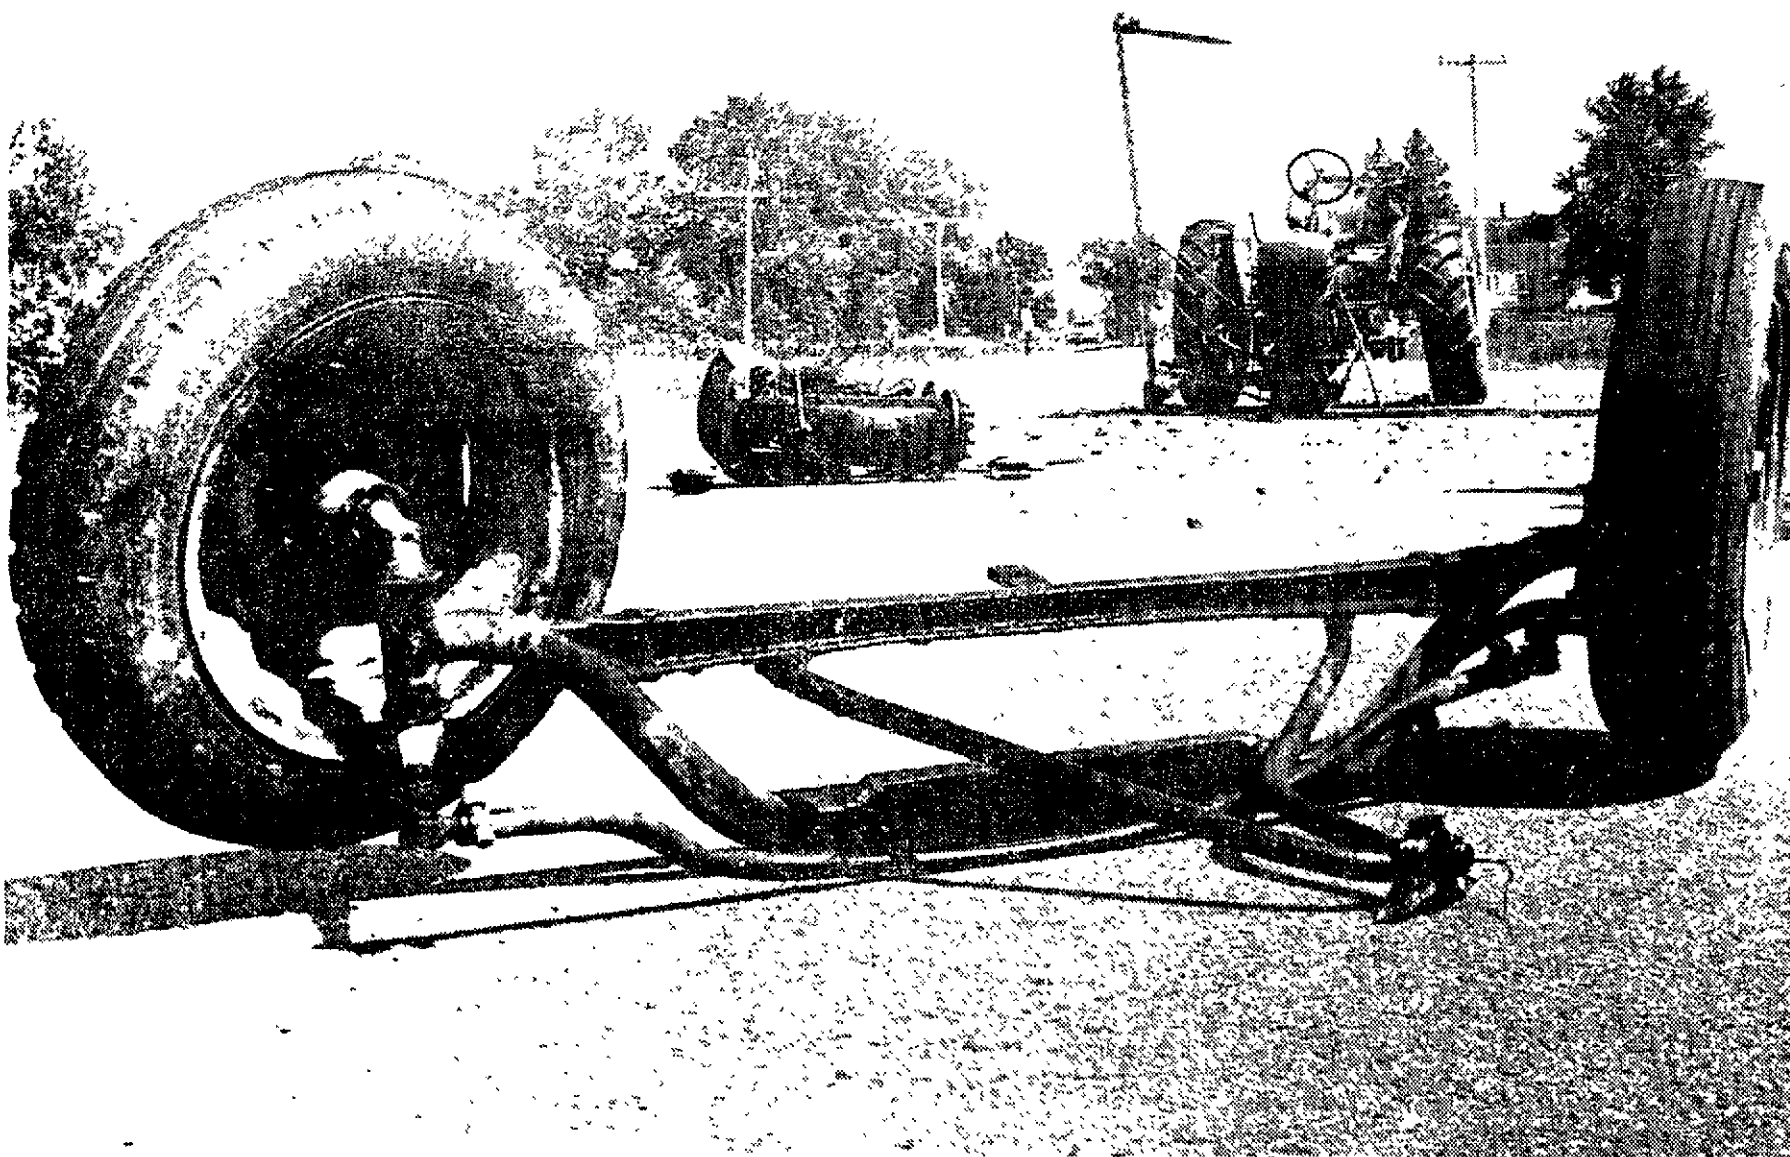

If the bill finally reaches the state Senate, as presumed, it will face a rocky road.

Most observers doubt that the upper house will support the site change. Moreover, if the senators were to concur with the Assembly, it is doubtful on the basis of his public comments that Gov. Warren P. Knowles would sign the change into law. University of Wisconsin officials are worried that even the fact of a legislative dispute about the location will interfere with their planning for the opening of the new school in the fall of 1969, and they were supported in that worry when the State Building Commission Monday failed to approve immediate additional financing for the construction plan.

Conversely, the Shorewood site decision may be in peril as a result of a lawsuit in the Dane County Circuit Court, sponsored by Outagamie County, that challenges the validity of the site selection procedure. The delay in the settlement of that litigation is also worrying the university administration.

The prolonged and passionate argument on the Assembly floor late Tuesday resembled a neighborhood row in some respects.

Censure Resolution Sought

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Lance Cpl. Jack R. Rush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Rush of Algoma, Wis., was killed in recent action in Vietnam, the Defense Department said Tuesday.

Israel announced that Israeli naval units sank two Egyptian torpedo boats Tuesday in the Mediterranean Sea. The first naval clash between the two nations since the Middle East war last month.

Off Egypt Town

An Israeli army spokesman said the engagement occurred in the Mediterranean about 16 miles off the occupied Egyptian town of El Arish when the Egyptian boats fired on a patrolling Israeli flotilla which included the destroyer Elath and two torpedo boats.

The spokesman said eight Israeli seamen were slightly wounded.

An Egyptian communiqué claimed that Israeli machine guns opened fire on Egyptian forces on the west bank of the Suez Canal south of Ismailia. The communiqué said Egyptian guns fired back and knocked out two Israeli armored cars. It said there were no Egyptian casualties.

The censure move led by Pakistani Ambassador Agha Shahi overshadowed intense behind-the-scenes negotiations on other newsmen who met him at Annapolis resolutions as the General Assembly prepared to resume its emergency session on the Middle East this afternoon after a one-week recess.

No agreement appeared near on any proposal to break the assembly's tight deadlock on withdrawal of Israeli troops from the territories of Egypt, Syria and Jordan occupied during the June war.

Israel touched off the censure move Tuesday by informing the Secretary-General U Thant that it was going ahead with measures to unify the Israeli and former Jordanian sectors of

Jerusalem despite the assembly resolution July 4 calling on Israel to rescind all measures of the holy places in the Arab which would "alter the status of sector."

Eban flew to New York Tuesday night to defend Israel's position against the heavy barrage of criticism expected in the assembly from Arabs, Soviet bloc diplomats and others.

The resolution July 4 was adopted 99-0 with 20 abstentions. The United States abstained, although the Johnson administration had urged Israel not to annex the Old City.

The assembly can condemn or censure Israel, but only the U.N. Security Council can impose penalties. One proposal under consideration was to have the assembly ask the council to implement the July 4 resolution.

On the questions of Israeli troop withdrawals from Arab territory and future steps to stabilize the Middle East, the assembly remained divided, despite numerous efforts during the week's recess to find a compromise formula.

Without Conditions

One group, including the Arabs, the Soviet bloc and some so-called nonaligned countries, insisted that the assembly must call for the withdrawal of Israeli troops without any conditions attached.

Another group, including the United States, the Latin Americans and most of the Western powers, held that the withdrawal must be linked to an end to the state of war which the Arabs have maintained against Israel since 1948.

Among those offering compromise plans during the week were Spain and Cyprus, but neither side would budge on the major issues. The outcome may be adoption of a face-saving resolution avoiding the question of troop withdrawal and asking the secretary-general to name a personal representative to explore peace possibilities.

Silent on Recommendations

McNamara, Johnson Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara kept secret today his recommendations on boosting U.S. troop strength in Vietnam.

He hinted strongly at plans to get more combat power out of the forces already there.

In advance of a luncheon with President Johnson at the White House, McNamara refused to disclose what measures he will propose as a result of his ninth on-the-spot checkup of the U.S. military effort in Vietnam.

"I can't comment on what additional troops, if any, will be sent," the defense chief told newsmen who met him at Annapolis, where he arrived from Saigon just before midnight Tuesday.

He refused flatly to give any idea about the course of the air war, saying "I never comment on future operations."

The effectiveness of the bombing in North Vietnam was a prime topic during McNamara's conference with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, and other American military leaders there.

McNamara re-stated what he said is a two-year-old policy this way: "What the military commanders feel necessary to carry out the military operations that are required to meet our limited political objectives in South Vietnam will be sent."

"I'm not pointing to any future troop increases — I just want to make perfectly clear the basis on which we consider troop requests," he stressed.

Westmoreland is reported to have asked for up to 140,000 more fighting men. Present U.S. strength in Vietnam stands at about 466,000.

Current Pentagon speculation centers on the possibility Johnson will approve possibly two more division forces, totaling possibly 70,000 men, spread over a period of months.

Army officials said they could handle such an increase, and possibly even a bigger one, by increasing the draft rather than calling up reservists.

The strongest possibility ap-

Reds Regain Initiative in Fighting, Political Conditions Are Explosive

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The back drop for Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's talks in Saigon was an alarming decline of war morale here, where the gloom is deeper than at any time since massive U.S. intervention in early 1965. The reason for the gloom is that the strategy adopted in 1965 has been only half-successful.

That is, the vast U.S. build-up definitely averted any possibility of losing the war. But this strategy also has definitely fallen far short of its primary goal: hurting the Communists so badly they would be compelled to negotiate.

The reality is far different. Although U.S. troops have now reached just under the 475,000 that the military told President Johnson would do the job, General William Westmoreland now says he needs 100,000 to 200,000 more.

Devise New Strategy
The reason for this, unimaginable back in 1965, is now all too clear. The Communists have devised a hit-and-run strategy centered on the edge of their two great sanctuaries — the demilitarized zone (DMZ) and the border of Cambodia.

The North Vietnamese forced a drastic shift of U.S. forces when they attacked across the DMZ against our Marine camps along the border. Reinforcements were rushed north.

Then, without warning, these regular troops of Hanoi pulled back. But operating from the sanctuary of North Vietnam, they remain a constant threat, tying down thousands of U.S. troops. Meanwhile, along the Cambodian border, other North Vietnamese regulars are certain to launch large-scale fighting with the onset of the rainy season.

Again, the possibility of enemy successes in those highland areas poses a similar threat to the U.S. Reinforcements may be needed there.

Regain Initiative
Thus, the enemy has regained the initiative, choosing the time

With headlines across the country dramatizing the plight of the Marines along the DMZ, the military have a built-in political case for pressing their demand for immediate reinforcements. Yet, with U.S. casualties now far outstripping those of South Vietnam, Mr. Johnson also must think hard before he takes another major escalation which, like it or not, will make the war even more ready is.

In addition to this, experts on the non-military side of the war are now confronting the Sept. 3 election with less hope than a harder than his decision in 1965. What worries is that this time neither Westmoreland nor any one else can estimate the critical number of South Vietnamese military leaders and civilian politicians, most of whom take a far softer line toward the Viet Cong than the military.

So, of course, does Hanoi. But Hanoi has a trained pool of some 200,000 or more regular troops who can walk to war anytime they're needed, pick the scene of battle, fight, then disappear to lick their wounds. Facing this open-ended situation, President Johnson can be excused if he thinks long and hard before approving any such jump in U.S. manpower as Westmoreland now demands. But Mr. Johnson's problem is in fact far more difficult than that.

State Officials Declare Boys' School Ineffective

Say High Admission Rate Causes Too
Short a Stay to 'Redirect' Delinquents

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The men in charge of the Kettle Moraine School for Boys, the principal correctional institution for male juvenile delinquents operated by the state government, continue to declare their worry that the rising admissions rate at the school is seriously diluting the institution's training program.

Because of the high rate of intake, the average length of stay has been reduced to less than four months. Paul Prast, institution superintendent, reported today to the state Board of Welfare. "This can hardly be considered adequate time to redirect the lives of the young boys committed to our care," he commented somberly.

Capacity Under 300
The school near Plymouth in eastern Wisconsin has a rated capacity of under 300. Last year it received nearly 900 youths expected to be in service for at least two years.

Stowaways Control Ship, Land in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Six armed men believed to be Cuban stowaways took charge of the vessel Freight Transporter off Miami Beach early today and came ashore in a lifeboat after smashing the ship's radio, the Coast Guard reported.

The Coast Guard said it had received a report from the vessel, which had sailed from Miami's Dodge Island port at 12:30 a.m., that the men had taken over the ship.

At 2 a.m. several persons saw flares fired off the beach and then saw six men carrying rifles and other firearms come ashore.

Police recovered the lifeboat on the beach at 13th Street.

The Coast Guard said it was not known where the men had stowed away on the freighter, or where the vessel had come from. It was reportedly bound from here for Guatemala.

Jerry Schnur, 28, a night clerk at the Seashore Hotel, said the men got into a cab after coming ashore.

peared to be the addition of one division force, totaling about 35,000 men, to plug gaps left by Army troops moving into the central highlands and the northernmost provinces to bolster other Army and Marine troops against serious North Vietnamese probes.

One effect of this shift of men from the provinces around Saigon has been to reduce U.S. Army sweeps into Viet Cong-held areas and thus permit some Viet Cong to return to sectors from which they had been driven.

McNamara demonstrated a determination to get more fighting manpower out of U.S. forces already in Vietnam — and, it appeared, out of the none-too-successful South Vietnamese forces.

McNamara noted there are slightly over a million allied forces in Vietnam, including Americans, South Vietnamese and relatively small forces from South Korea, Australia and New Zealand and the Philippines.

"There are large opportunities for increasing the effectiveness of our men in existing forces," McNamara said. "Clearly that must be one of our immediate objectives."

Asked to elaborate on these points, the defense secretary spoke of "further opportunities for reducing the ratio of support to combat forces."

This was a reference to the situation which finds many more behind-the-front troops than combat forces in Vietnam.

"There are opportunities for increasing the training and experience of the leadership," McNamara added.

He did not spell out what leadership he was referring to, but defense officials said they believed he meant South Vietnamese officers.

Many U.S. officers have complained the South Vietnamese combat corps shows a lack of aggressiveness, resulting in South Vietnamese troops committing less than they should to the war effort.

Victory Edge Increased By Froehlich

Green Bay back and forth. Five votes were cast previously and were not present at the decisive moment and only one had taken the procedural precaution to put with a bill backer in a place to take an opponent out of the vote.

Missing were Assemblymen Harold Clemens, R-Oconomowoc; Oscar Laper, R-Rock Springs; Floyd Shurbert, R-Oshkosh; Edward Nager, D-Madison; and Tommie Thompson, R-Elroy.

In addition, Assemblyman Greger Back, R-Highland, did not vote on the bill, continuing a policy of noninvolvement maintained throughout the session.

The most massive punch of Froehlich, however, was seen in the vote changes which he was able to swing in the intervening weeks. Green Bay lost an additional five votes through switches worked by Froehlich.

Democrats Mark Lipscomb, Milwaukee; Vincent Mathews, Waukesha; John Radcliffe, Strum; and Republican Fredrick Schroeder, West Bend moved to back Froehlich.

Green Bay could only gain one vote through a change — that of William Johnson, Milwaukee Democrat.

And Froehlich also gained the vote of Elmer Nitschke, R-Beaver Dam, who did not vote four weeks ago.

Both sides gained three of the four paired votes which were untallied in the test. And Green Bay lost the vote of Assemblyman Adrian Manders, Milwaukee Democrat who died after the first vote was taken.

The most decisive directions were those of liberal Democrats switching to back Froehlich, giving further indications that at least a part of the Democratic caucus decided to back the Republican speaker in an effort to embarrass Republican Gov. Warren P. Knowles, and further split the regional and state GOP through the provincial fight with statewide implications.

All Madison area Republican lawmakers, for instance, voted against Froehlich's position, but no capital city Democrats backed their traditional ally—the university—in opposing the Rogers bill.

Understanding With Britain

U.S. Silent on Hong Kong Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — State prudent to take into account the agreement with Hong Kong authorities which covers U.S. military presence in Hong Kong will not be on the island. At this point there is no formal commitment by the United States to defend Hong Kong. But the extent to which exchange of views between the United States and Britain for the defense of the crown colony off the coast of China is not being disclosed.

Legal authorities at the State Department make it clear there is no formal commitment by the United States to defend Hong Kong. But the extent to which exchange of views between the United States and Britain for the defense of the crown colony off the coast of China is not being disclosed. State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey was meeting here last month to discuss the subject during their visit to the United States.

McCluskey advised U.S. tourists Tuesday that it would be a mistake to visit the island. The United States has an interest in the island. The United States has an interest in the island. The United States has an interest in the island.

Campus Site Change Passed by Assembly

its own declared criteria in its decision in favor of the Shorewood site and that a west side location for the campus would serve the largest number of potential students in Northeastern Wisconsin communities.

According to Rogers, 69 per cent of the prospective enrollment of the new school — excluding students in the city of Green Bay — would be more than 10 miles from the site.

That many of the legislators from other sides of the state said he was not counting many of the fight was shown in the students in Neenah and Menasha who might also attend the school. On the first Green Bay university branch approval vote several weeks ago, the Outagamie County welfare of the greatest number campaign won by a scant six votes.

The arguments for the most Johnson charged that the Outagamie County men were trying to repudiate a decision taken in Brown County communities good faith by the preceding Legislature and to destroy the possibility of a branch campus. Debate grew acrimonious at this late time would be unfair. Froehlich, as the leader of the GOP majority, had used arm-twisting tactics in his anxiety to get the measure out of the house. He said he does not expect interim committee assignments, which are decided by the speaker. Johnson also quoted Joseph Delveaux, prominent Brown County Democrat, as saying that Rogers had informed him that the site change proposal was an opportunity to "embarrass Knowles."

Froehlich said he resented the charges by Green Bay interests that the real motive of the Rogers bill backers is to arrange affairs ultimately to bring the campus to an Outagamie County location. He described such allegations as ridiculous and said there is now no possible chance for such a site selection which Outagamie County interests originally sought.

Froehlich also denied that he had used pressure tactics. "I ask you where the pressure really came from?" he asked, and then answered: "It came from the other side."

City officials have promised to help the judge keep his cool. He is scheduled to get air conditioning — in January.

Gloom Pictured After Intensification

The doves are telling Johnson through Senate and House speeches that he also will be risking World War III if he pours in a huge complement of ground forces and expands the bombing of North Vietnam.

The hawks, diverted at the moment by the alarms of possible American involvement in African conflicts, are otherwise relatively silent while awaiting Johnson's decision after he confers with Gen. William C. Westmoreland and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Both just returned from Vietnam.

Hawk View
But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen seemed to voice the general view of hawks that if Westmoreland wants more troops, he ought to have what he needs.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who wants a renewed effort to reduce the present level of U.S. involvement in the Asian war, cited the possible domestic effects of expanding the conflict.

Mansfield told the Senate Tuesday that a third world war may be "already incubating in the ever-deepening and expanding struggle in Southeast Asia." He said every escalation thus far had failed to bring the conflict nearer an end.

"Before we take another significant step deeper into Vietnam," he said, "it is to be hoped that we will have asked ourselves at what point we intend to increase taxes, apply wage and price controls, tighten the draft exemptions, call up the reserves and make the countless other adjustments in our national life which are implicit in further extensions of the American involvement."

Mansfield's estimate that Vietnam expenditures will rise to $25 billion yearly brought a prediction from Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., that an increase of 18 to 20 per cent in income taxes may be in the offing.

Aiken questioned whether citizens who urge intensification of the war are willing to pay the price for an all-out effort.

Planes to Congo
An effort by Secretary of State Dean Rusk to placate senators who vigorously protested Johnson's dispatch of three U.S. transport planes to help the Congo government appeared to have made little headway.

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, who said it was immoral to send one American serviceman to the Congo, said after hearing Rusk in a closed session that he hadn't changed his opinions about anything.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., head of the Foreign Relations Africa subcommittee, said the President acted "without clear legal authority." He said, however, he did not share the view of other critics that the action might trigger a Vietnam-type involvement in Africa.

Greater Voice
Foreign Relations Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said later he and others told Rusk that Congress wants a greater voice — not just post-decision consultation—in deciding whether U.S. military forces should be ordered to new world trouble spots.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, said he regarded as reasonable Rusk's explanation that the planes had been sent to safeguard or evacuate 3,200 endangered American citizens.

"I don't see it as an intervention," Hickenlooper said. On the turbulent Middle East, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., recommended that the United States take the initiative for peace. He said the Soviets are stirring up trouble in the area by resupplying the Arabs with planes and arms.

Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., like Hartke a recent visitor to the area, said Israel should retain some of the territory it gained in its lightning war with the Arabs. He proposed that the

The doves are telling Johnson through Senate and House speeches that he also will be risking World War III if he pours in a huge complement of ground forces and expands the bombing of North Vietnam.

The hawks, diverted at the moment by the alarms of possible American involvement in African conflicts, are otherwise relatively silent while awaiting Johnson's decision after he confers with Gen. William C. Westmoreland and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Both just returned from Vietnam.

Hawk View
But Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen seemed to voice the general view of hawks that if Westmoreland wants more troops, he ought to have what he needs.

Dame Margot, Nureyev Escape Hippie Charges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dame Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev, ballet's foremost partners who explored Hippeville's fascinations, escaped today the embarrassment of court arraignment on charges of disturbing the peace.

The charges against Dame Margot, Nureyev and 16 others arrested at 3 a.m. Tuesday at a noisy party in a shabby Haight-Ashbury district flat, were ordered dropped.

Frederick J. Whisman, assistant district attorney, said Tuesday the decision to drop all charges "has nothing to do with the identity of any of the persons involved and I feel there was reasonable cause for the arrests."

But he said, the evidence was not enough to determine who among the 18 arrested had marijuana or disturbed the peace.

Pilots Get Warning Of Air Turbulence

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new device can give jet pilots advance warning of turbulence as much as 10 miles ahead, and with more development the advance distance may be 30 miles, the Federal Aviation Administration reports.

The device is an infrared spectrometer manufactured by the Barnes Engineering Co. of Stamford, Conn., and its use in detecting turbulences involves a light-measuring technique.

NE Planners Will Conduct First Institute

Waupaca to be Site When Officials From Eight Counties Meet

The Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission will hold its first community planning institute for cities, villages and towns in the eight-county region it serves July 25 at the Waupaca Country Club.

The purpose of the meeting is to afford the communities of the area a better understanding of community planning and development.

Invitations have been sent to county board chairmen, mayors, village presidents, community associations and other interested officials.

Meeting Program

Subjects to be discussed at the meeting include:

Implications of the new Water Law, chapter 64, as it relates to incorporated and unincorporated areas.

The Commission's comprehensive area planning program for water and sewer systems for communities of less than 5,000 population.

How to establish a public water and sewer system.

The LAWCON program.

How best to utilize services of the Regional Planning Commission and the state and federal governments.

In addition to the discussions, each county, city and village association has been invited to present a display of its planning activities.

Displays will be judged by a committee of mayors, village presidents and county board chairmen on how well the display tells the story of the past, present and future activities of each community. A special award will be presented to the community with the best display.

City Officials Express Concern

Park Commission May Bypass Development of Bellaire Area

City officials expressed concern today over apparent plans of the park-recreation commission to by-pass a $13,000 master plan for development of the Bellaire Park area.

Arthur Jones, commission president, was contacted by The Post-Crescent and said the commission was "merely considering changes."

The matter came to the attention of city officials Monday when engineers were asked to stake out locations for a proposed year-around shelter house, plus roads and parking areas.

Engineers were skeptical about staking out areas because they noted they did not conform to the special plan prepared for a park layout by Harland Bartholomew and Associates more than a year ago, and approved by the old park board and city council following public hearings.

Donald Day Quits City Health Post

Peter LeMere, a Sanitarian, Will Take Over Duties

Donald D. Day, Appleton's deputy health commissioner, has resigned from the health department and will accept private employment.

Day, 2225 N. Gillett St., tendered his resignation today to Mayor George Buckley. He will leave city employment on Aug. 31.

The Board of Health held its regular monthly meeting this morning, and after accepting the resignation, appointed Peter LeMere to succeed Day.

From Fond du Lac

Day will be stepping down from the top fulltime job in the health department and a monthly salary of $805. Dr. James Laird is the city's health commissioner.

Before coming to Appleton in December of 1962, Day was a member of the Fond du Lac Health Department staff.

Day said he was leaving with the regret, explaining he has been offered an opportunity in private business which he felt was to the best advantage of his family and himself.

Major reason for the budget increase is found in two areas. Instructional costs are up $118,000 from $880,883, to $1,039,908.

Towel Firm Will Buy Site in Industrial Park

Plant Construction Planned in Five Years On Six-Acre Property by F. W. Means Co.

Agreement was reached Tuesday to have F. W. Means Co. purchase six acres of land in the city's west-side industrial park as the site of a future plant.

The firm is the parent company of the Appleton Clean Towel Service, which has its industrial uniform service at 205 N. Douglas St.

William Alexander, general marketing manager for Clean Towel Service met with the city council's commerce-industrial development committee and made final land purchase arrangements at city hall Tuesday afternoon.

Alexander previously had said his company was interested in an industrial park site. Since then city officials supplied him with information, leading to the offer to purchase.

Ald. Norman Beyer (20th), committee chairman, said the city will sell the land at $4,490 per acre to the firm which intends to construct a new plant facility within the next five years.

"I appreciate the fact that city officials worked closely with me in arriving at the sales agreement," Alexander said. "The land already has public utilities, resulting in the higher per-acre price."

"We are definitely looking for tremendous growth and expansion of our services in the Appleton area and the remainder of the region between Fond du Lac and Wausau and environmental services," Alexander commented.

Centralizing Operations

He said when the new plant is constructed, plans call for centralizing the company's operations in the region.

The Douglas Street plant, measuring 180 by 180 feet, quarters the Clean Towel Service and Industrial Uniform Service of the F. W. Means Co., and currently has 116 employees.

Company officials said the industrial park tract provided "an excellent site" for their proposed new building.

Detailed building plans will be announced later.

12-Room Addition Sought for Madison Junior High School

School Board Wants Authority To Obtain Architectural Plans

Permission to interview an architect for a 12-room addition to Madison Junior High School will be asked of the city council by the Appleton Board of Education.

A figure of $500,000 for the addition, which should be ready by the fall of 1968, was cited by the board at a meeting Monday.

Predicted enrollment figures for the coming years show the need for the addition. For the coming year alone, 764 students, an increase of about 137, or 20 per cent, are expected.

Recommendations According to James Murphy, principal, the expansion recommended includes two large areas on the ground floor with moving portions so that there would be six rooms for large group instruction and six science rooms on the second floor.

A large all-purpose room in the area where the pool was planned at one time, to accommodate a third area for physical education and a cold lunch room; a drawing-art room connected to the all-purpose room.

Also requested is the remodeling of the office suite to accommodate counselor, dean of girls and a health room as well as about 400 extra lockers.

Other statistics listed by Murphy: —Parochial enrollment in next year's ninth grade will include 115 students by actual survey. This figure is roughly a 65 per cent increase over the normal parochial influx at this level.

—Incoming seventh grade class numbers are about 20 per cent more than the prediction of one year ago.

—The eighth grade class of 1968 will be about 20 per cent more than the prediction of one year ago.

Girl Reports Theft of Purse From Unlocked Auto Late Tuesday

Sally Klapper, 1136 E. Glen Dale Ave., has reported to Appleton police that her purse was taken from an unlocked car about midnight Tuesday.

Miss Klapper told police about 12:30 a.m. today that her handbag had been stolen from an auto she had parked in the Soldiers Square Parking lot about 11:45 p.m. Tuesday.

She said when she returned about 12:15 a.m. today the straw purse was gone.

It contained a watch valued at $75.55 in cash and a checkbook.

Tractors Tug to Open Fair

SEYMOUR — Inches made the difference in the 3rd annual tractor pulling contest here Tuesday night witnessed by a crowd estimated at 2,500.

The contest, sponsored by the Outagamie County Soil and Water Conservation Association, officially opened the 1967 county fair.

Numerous second pullings of the weighted boat were required throughout the night to offer spectators the equivalent of extra innings in excitement. None of last year's champions repeated and their record pulls were easily outdistanced.

Rematch Required

A rematch was even required in the women's competition to decide a winner.

Class A: tractors up to 5999 pounds — William Bestcha, Black Creek, 302.31 feet; John Vandee Bogart, Black Creek, 262.5 feet; Darrel Zitzke, Bear Creek, 261.2 feet (all repulls); Ron Reiland, Appleton, 300.2 feet.

Class B: 6,000-7,499 pounds — William Vandee Bogart, rural West De Pere, 145.3 feet, and Ivo Liebergen, Kaukauna, 132.0 feet, both repulls; Ben Brown, Appleton, 301.2 feet, and Roger Schmidt, Shiocton, 296.2 feet. Schmidt won this class last year with a pull of 238.3 feet.

Class C: 7,500-8,999 pounds — Bruce Steinocker, Hortonville, 232.6 feet, and Carl Trost, Seymour, 196.9 feet, both pull-overs; Dave Rabas, Oconto Falls, 149.2 feet; Bob Calaway, West De Pere, 141.2 feet.

Class D: 9,000 pounds to 11,999 pounds. Reuben Poppe, Bear Creek, 271.9 feet; Harvey Albert, Seymour, 271.3 feet; Les Rombertg, Winneconne, 244.1 feet; Richard Scharschmidt, Markesan, 234.8 feet.

Class E: 12,001-16,000 pounds — Jerry Ebert, Reedsville, 159.95 feet, and Gene Peters, Shiocton, 159.75 feet.

Women's Division: Up 0-5,999 pounds — Sue Greely, Shiocton, 263.7 feet; Dianne Zitzke, Bear Creek, 233.6 feet; Joan Vanden Bogart, Appleton, and Doris Trost, Seymour, tied at 233.6 feet.

The association paid prize money in the first four places in each class in the order of $40, $30, $20 and $10.

DRD Okay Required for Pipeline Job

MADISON — Appleton water officials were told Tuesday that they must seek a second state hearing on a major portion of a $3,988,250 water utility expansion project.

State Department of Resource Development approval must be sought first on a proposed $2.2 million pipeline project to bring Appleton fresh water from Lake Winnebago, they were told at a hearing conducted by the State Public Service Commission (PSC).

There was no opposition to Appleton's future water expansion plans during the hearing.

Transfer of Functions

The dual approval is necessary, the Appleton contingent was told by Commission Examiner Calmer Brow, because of the July 1 transfer of water regulatory functions from the PSC to the water resources division of the Resource Board as a part of the omnibus anti-pollution act passed by the 1965 Legislature.

Taken aback, the water utility delegation heard that only the portion of the project calling for a $1,788,250 addition to the Appleton water treatment plant could be considered without prior Resource Department approval.

Under new regulations, the Resource Department must approve placing facilities on the

Legislators Fear Move Could Hurt Green Bay Campus

MADISON — Assemblyman Robert Kordus, D-Milwaukee, has called for a special meeting Monday of the State Building Commission to release $250,000 in planning funds for the construction of the University of Wisconsin Parkside campus near Kenosha.

The move would separate the Green Bay campus proposal from planning funds for the new southeastern Wisconsin campus in a move which backers of the northeastern school fear.

If Parkside campus funds alone are approved, they believe, the support of southeastern Wisconsin legislators aiding the Green Bay contingent in the joint fight for the preservation of the two new campuses might be lost.

Green Bay campus foes then could move to kill the Green Bay campus with less opposition, the Brown County law-makers fear.

Higher Standards Urged for Licenses

Alderman Wants Strict Control For Tavern, Bartender Permits

An alderman from Appleton's northeast side called for a policy of higher standards for issuing tavern and bartender licenses Tuesday night.

"I don't think that any Tom, Dick and Harry that comes in and asks for a license should be given one," declared Ald. William Errington (15th).

He warned his colleagues on the welfare-ordinance committee it would be a dangerous practice for the city to become lax in its licensing procedure.

Errington noted that some applicants for bartender licenses for the 1967-68 fiscal year had police records, having been convicted of felonies.

"I think the committee should have a set standards as to when to deny a license," Errington asserted.

Errington noted that some

Committee, Citizens Back Teen Curfew

Neenah Residents
Under 16 Would Have 10 p.m. Limit

NEENAH — Backed by a petition containing 650 signatures and increasingly widespread support from concerned citizens, the public protection committee unanimously recommended a curfew to guide Neenah's youths Tuesday.

The measure would give youths 16 years and under a daily deadline of 10 p.m. on week nights and midnight on Friday and Saturday.

Ald. Robert Frank, Fourth Ward, who has led the push for another look at a curfew to help control vandalism after a similar proposal was dropped last fall, said he has received "terrific response" to the idea.

He pointed to the 650 signatures on the petition and added that the small group of persons circulating the petitions, given a few more days, could come up with enough names to force the curfew issue on a referendum.

"And it would pass like nothing," Frank added.

Several aldermen expressed concern that only Neenah would establish the curfew and thus it wouldn't be effective in the surrounding communities.

Frank said that aldermen in Menasha have shown interest in a curfew and were awaiting Neenah's plan. Mayor Carl Loehning added that the Town of Neenah "is definitely interested" in a curfew.

The petitions, circulated by a half-dozen persons headed by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Romberg, 312 Caroline St., were signed by a large number of residents in the Fourth Ward, but the forms also contained signatures from persons living in other parts of the city.

Clothing, Shelter Needed

Neenah Family of Five Left Homeless by Fire

NEENAH - MENASHA — A Red Cross plea for clothing and shelter went out today following a flash fire that left a Town of Neenah family of five homeless Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Carol Olson and her four sons were burned out of their Richter's Bay Road house rented from Mrs. Olson's father when a spark from a charcoal broiler ignited gasoline in a can in the attached garage.

About 20 firemen from the Towns of Neenah-Menasha Joint Fire Department responded with two firefighting units after receiving the 11:30 a.m. alarm. Fire Chief John Huebner said neighbors reported the fire had spread "within seconds" from the starting point in the garage to the rest of the house.

An air current coming in the open garage door was blamed for fanning the flames inside the home.

By the time firemen arrived, flames had spread to the attic of the single-story dwelling.

Firemen laid hoses to pump water from Lake Winnebago. They managed to halt the flames about half-way through the building, but the intense heat scorched much of the rest, Huebner said.

According to Mrs. Mildred Pantton, secretary of the Neenah Red Cross Chapter, clothing for the family, including boys' garments ranging in size from 8 through 12, is needed.

The family is also seeking another home to rent, she said.

The joint fire department still had equipment at the scene when an alarm sounded for a series of grass fires along the Soo Line Railroad right-of-way between Little Lake Butte des Morts and U.S. 41.

Firemen responded with three units from stations on both sides of the lake. The cause was suspected as sparks from a diesel train engine. Huebner said the railroad is investigating the fires, which spread from Jacobson Road to County Trunk BB in the Town of Menasha and extended into the Town of Grand Chute in Outagamie County. The Grand Chute fire department was also summoned.

Needs for Senior Citizens

Housing Authority Ordinance To be Re-Drafted by Geenen

The first draft of an ordinance creating an Appleton Board of Realtors Housing Authority will be re-worked by City Atty. Buckley says he intends to appoint a real estate man to the live-man board.

When the committee met Tuesday night and took a look at the proposed ordinance, exception was made to the fact that it merely referred to low rental housing.

Members of the committee, and representatives of the Appleton Board of Realtors, said the ordinance should spell out the authority would deal specifically with housing needs of Appleton's senior citizens.

Police Chief's Request

Motorized Meter Maid Question Unanswered

The question of whether to provide police department meter maids with motor-scooters remained unanswered after Tuesday's meeting of the council's public safety committee at city hall.

Sometime ago Police Chief Earl O. Wolff requested the five female meter checkers be motorized.

And on the heels of that came a resolution by Ald. Arthur Hoolihan (11th) to have the meter maids transferred into the parking meter department.

No action has been taken on either suggestion.

Ald. John Ayers (12th), committee chairman, said he felt no action should be taken until normal parking is resumed in the downtown area after the reopening of College Avenue.

At one point there was a chief's request — paramount to killing it — but it died lacking a second.

Some aldermen said having the motorized meter maids had advantages, pointing to the fact that police officers could then be relieved of parking ticket-writing duties and devote more time to patrolling and other law enforcement.

On another matter, the committee said it would meet July 17 to draft an ambulance regulation ordinance, and then call in operators and other interested persons at another session July 19 to finalize the proposed legislation.

There has been a move for sometime to put private ambulance services under municipal ordinance. The committee has a complete file on how other communities have handled the situation.

Other work already completed since crews started the job May 22 includes cutting doorways to connect the former bank with the present office building and installing some of the partition walls dividing the bank into separate offices. Workmen have also started preparing to put a new face on the fronts of the two buildings, which will retain the bank's columned front but cover the present city office structure's front wall.

A 90-day timetable was promised by Lauer Bros. Inc., Appleton General contractor, for completing the $100,000 job.

Water Project Must Face Second Hearing beds of navigable waters such as Lake Winnebago.

The Appleton water officials continued their presentation on the project but until the required resource hearing the major portion of the project cannot proceed.

The PSC can approve now only that portion of the request calling for the issuance of a certificate of necessity for a possible water service rate increase for utility customers to finance the revenue bonds needed for the first phase of the two-step project.

That stage will include the additions to the treatment plant itself under the utility's plans.

Second Phase

The second phase — dependent on receipt of an awaited federal grant of $1.5 million from HUD — will add the pipeline to the lake and an intake system in the lake about 1,200 feet from the north shoreline, former water department director Dr. William Gallaher testified at the hearing.

Browy then told the delegation that in the case of the pipeline project, "You are putting the cart before the horse."

"We have nothing to say about that any more — nor is there any application before this body, or any public body, to do that. It's not your fault," he told the delegation. "You just happened to come in during this transitional stage."

No Opposition

The hearing proceeded without opposition on the plan, while the group made plans to request a public hearing from the Resource Department.

Treatment plant planner William H. Richardson of the Chicago consulting firm designing the facility testified it has been found that the plant addition will require an additional $40,000 due to overlooked items.

Gallaher presented the bulk of the testimony at the hearing, including documents depicting past severe strains on the treatment plant's capacity for producing useable water.

A public health service official has called Appleton's water supply "the most polluted of any included in a national study of more than 50 communities."

Richardson said the present plant capacity of 12.5 million gallons a day would be increased under the plan to about 22 to 25 million gallons a day. That amount would care for city needs until sometime between 1980 and 1990.

If a proposed Lake Michigan water intake system is ever constructed, he added, the Lake Winnebago pipeline could be easily altered to be part of it.

Possible Postponement

"If we do not get approval on the federal grant in the near future," said Appleton City Atty. David Geenen, "we will probably have to proceed with the expansion of the treatment plant and postpone the pipeline."

"Quantity is more important than quality right now as long as we are reaching plant capacity," he said, explaining that without federal funds the treatment plant addition would work with water drawn from the Fox River.

Present at the hearing was an 11-man group of Appleton Water utility and city officials headed by Robert Deland, water commission chairman, Melvin F. Crowley and John Scanlon of the Menasha Water utility also attended but did not testify.

1967 will exceed by about 20 per cent over the 1966 class.

The new Appleton East High School is influencing ninth grade parochial students to enroll here, which, eventually, may carry over into the seventh and eighth grades.

Real Estate 'Attractive'

"The real estate on the south side will look very attractive with the thought of sending one's children from kindergarten through 12 in completely new school facilities," Murphy said.

All in all, he added, the trend appears to be that James Madison should prepare to house around 1,000 students within the next few years.

Looking ahead, the board was also informed by Charles Buchanan, board president, that a proposed 28-classroom elementary school could be constructed on a five-acre site near Einstein Junior High School.

Normally, a 10-acre site is used for an elementary school the Ponderosa amusement center but since the Einstein play area Saturday night and took $11 state superintendent's office has rides and a coffee maker.

special letter to Gov. Warren P. Knowles, chairman of the commission; commission secretary Gerald Emmer and Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Bayside.

Leonard stated bluntly Monday that he opposes any such move because of the possibility that it could be used to kill the campus.

Monday the building commission deadlocked on a 4-4 vote and thereby prevented the release of $300,000 for the two new campuses. Kordus was blocked in the same commission meeting in an effort to release the funds for only the Parkside campus.

Meanwhile, Dane County Circuit Court Judge Edwin Wilkie, said today that he may have a decision in Outagamie County's court suit contesting the selection of the Shorewood site for the UW-GB by the middle of next week.

Wilkie said that his summer calendar is crowded but that he regards the case as an important one which must be decided this summer.

"Pretty Deep Matter"

"I don't want to do a half way job on the case. It's a pretty deep matter," he said.

But next week looks light in comparison to the rest of his summer schedule, Wilkie said, and he will make a special effort to decide the case then.

Some Appleton area lawmakers have hinted that if the case is not decided, the building commission may not release funds for the progress on the Green Bay campus at the Shorewood site no matter what the fate of the Rogers bill.

The regular building commission schedule calls for a mid-August meeting of the agency to again consider the release of the funds for the two new campuses.

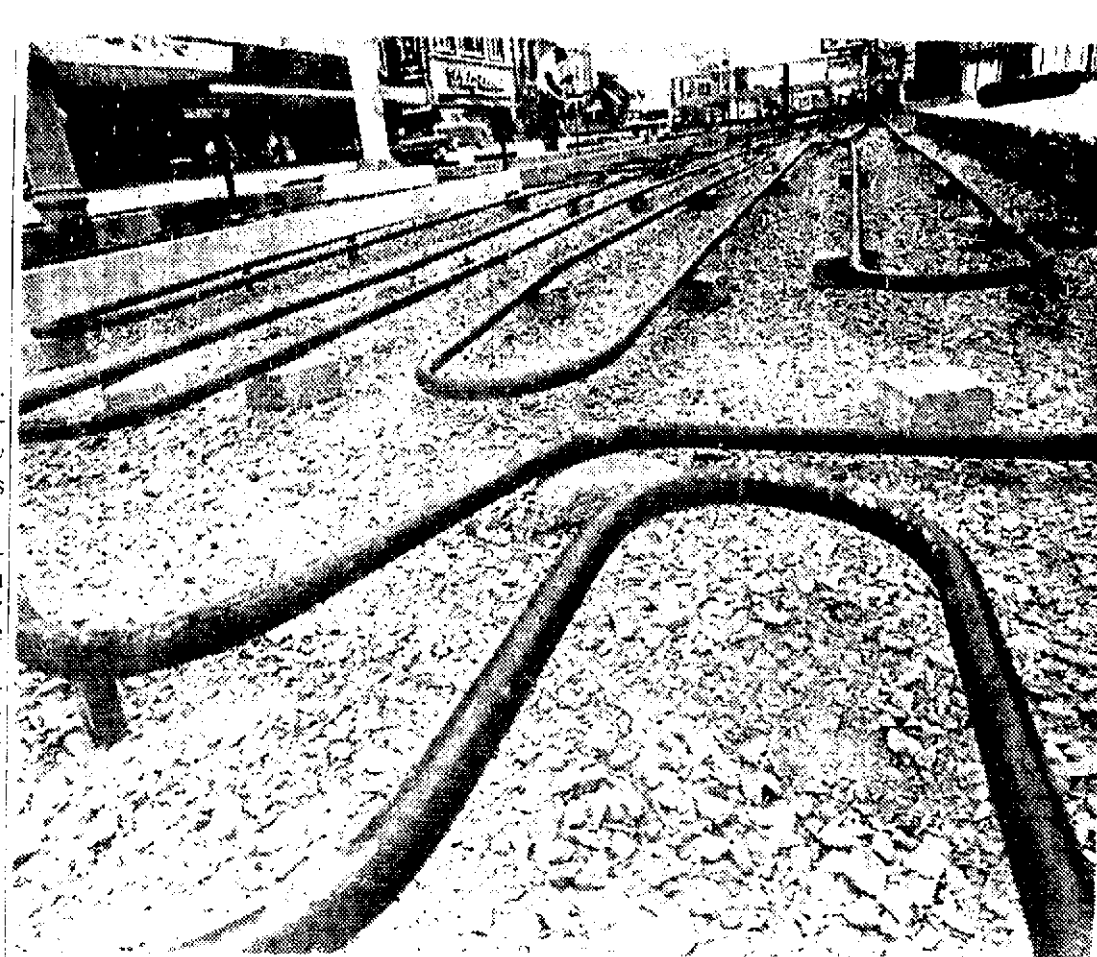

If that schedule is followed and the Kordus request refused, and if Wilkie's decision is handed down next week, the fate of the Green Bay campus could be sealed at the commission meeting.

Warns Against Lax Licensing state law in issuing tavern and other licenses.

Ald. Orville Strutz (17th) said because a man had a criminal record it should not mean his application must be denied. "If he has paid his debt to society, he should have another chance," Strutz asserted.

Strutz said if jobs were not available the same men would be on welfare rolls or back into trouble again.

"A license is a privilege, not a right," Errington declared. "I think we should keep this in mind at all times and take a hard look at our procedures."

Ald. William Wachtendonk (14th) agreed.

License applications are usually recommended for approval or rejection by the police chief. There have been isolated instances in which the committee and council have overridden the police report.

City Clerk Elden Bruehm estimated today that more than 450 various licenses have been issued for the new fiscal year.

Grand Ole' Opry Stars; Trade Horses for Planes

SEYMOUR — Modes of travel have changed a bit since the fair started here 84 years ago. If they hadn't Minnie Pearl could enter the city in the horse and buggy style of years gone by and still feel at home.

Instead, the queen of country-western humor flew in this afternoon to prepare for two performances tonight in front of the grandstand at the Outagamie County Fair.

Minnie Pearl's private plane flew from Nashville, Tenn., home of the Grand Ole' Opry.

Other Opry stars were expected to fly in from Chicago today. Seymour businessman Bill Miller is looking forward to a possible chance to sing again with Carmel Quinn. He sang a couple numbers with the Irish-born vocalist while attending the grandstand show in which she appeared here about five years ago.

Onlookers Thick

Bicycle traffic through the midway while rides are being assembled, is heavier than ever this year. The new swimming beach is just a short jaunt by bike from the fairgrounds and its exciting midway activities.

Personnel with Belle City Amusements have been taking advantage of the lake facilities. Some even brought clubs so they could try out the new Crystal Springs Golf Course, only a couple miles from the fairgrounds.

In the weather department, the 33rd fair officials point to their successful July record. Since the fair has been pushed ahead from August to July, it has been blessed with the best weather in its long history. In terms of consecutive numbers, the long string was broken only during World War I when the fair was suspended because of the war.

The new Tip Top ride which will make its debut here is expected to arrive from the Oregon factory Thursday, according to Chuck Panacek, Belle City owner.

Other rides arrived Monday and most were being assembled by late afternoon. An earlier threat of rain failed to materialize.

Concessionaires with the Belle City troupe had their trucks gathered along the periphery of the race track east of the grandstand, where they will be assigned spots after the midway is set up.

Spot Attractions

Elmer Bodart, of rural Shawano, is back again spotting the midway attractions for Belle City Amusements, of which he is part owner. He and Mrs. Bodart were featured in last year's Post-Crescent for having spent a half century playing consecutive fairs at Seymour.

Commercial exhibits have been increasing in recent years. Almost every nook and cranny is filled, according to fair officials. One of the largest this year will be the truck display from the Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corp.

New cars again will be on display under a tent furnished by auto dealers from Seymour.

Winners Listed In Post-Crescent Display Contest

Winners were announced to-day in The Post-Crescent's annual merchant's display contest held in conjunction with the newspaper's picnic products advertising promotion.

First prize of a solid redwood picnic table with benches was awarded to Maurice's, Appleton. Shirley S. Appleton took the second prize of a padded chaise longue.

Third prize, a cast iron charcoal grill was won by the Gamble Store, Valley Fair. Barretts of Appleton received honorable mention.

Theme of this year's promotion was "Pick Up and Go On a Picnic." Fox Cities merchants constructed in-store and window displays to participate in the contest.

Other participating merchants were W. T. Grant, Woolworth's, Eddie's Liquor Store, Badger Paint Store, Valley National Bank, Three Sisters and Walgreen's, all of Valley Fair, and Walgreen's and Wolfords of Appleton.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The purchase of 11 parcels of land at a cost of $360,088 for the site of a nursing-classroom building at Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh was approved unanimously Monday by the State Building Commission.

The purchase will add 97,336 square feet to the site planned for the construction of the building.

Also approved by the commission was the purchase of one parcel of land for use in expanding the student union at the school. Cost of the land, including legal fees, will be $20,600.

Union Funds

That purchase will be paid for out of student union funds, earned from student and operational receipts.

The major purchase will be financed from state university trust funds, the commission was told. Appraised value of the land is $349,000, at an average cost of $3.70 per square foot. Legal fees will raise the total to the approved price.

The commission voted in 1966 to purchase five other properties as part of the building site at a total cost of $134,672.

Red Attack on 4th Infantry In Highlands Leaves 25 Dead

Two Companies Had Completed Sweep of Jungle

SAIGON (AP) — A large North Vietnamese force attacked two U.S. infantry companies today and left 25 Americans dead and 22 wounded in the jungles just north of the Ia Drang Valley in the central highlands.

Associated Press correspondent Peter Arnett reported from Pleiku that the two companies, from the U.S. 4th Infantry division, had completed a follow-up sweep of an area hit by B52 bombers. They were on their way out when they came under 82mm mortar and heavy automatic weapons fire.

As fighting erupted in the central highlands, Communist guerrillas struck in force against two Mekong Delta outposts before dawn but were chased back across the flooded paddies with heavy losses. American warplanes and naval ships carried the war to North Vietnam again with air raids deep in Red territory Tuesday and ship-to-shore bombardments far up the coast. Five Red MIG21s were reported shot down. The U.S. Command said they refused battle.

U.S. headquarters said a unit of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division was fighting off Red fire from three sides according to the report from the Ia Drang battle field.

The fighting raged in a mountainous area close to the Cambodian frontier where fresh North Vietnamese regiments have been braced to drive into South Vietnam during the present rainy season for another effort to wrest the vital highlands from allied control.

The 4th Division infantrymen began running into Communist soldiers shortly after daybreak. Artillery barrage was called in on one group of 30 Reds. A few minutes later another group of about 150 Communists was brought to battle in a jungle fire-fight.

Helicopter Drop
American reinforcements began to pour into the battle from helicopters shortly after noon.

Reports from the remote battlefield were sketchy. The site is near the Ia Drang Valley where the biggest battle of the Vietnam war was fought two years ago with heavy losses on both sides.

A major Red effort in the highlands had been expected to follow or parallel the intensive 'barbarized zone. Reports from that pressure on the U.S. Marines area today said Communist harassment and artillery fire had dwindled to minor proportions over the past 48 hours.

Riot, Looting During Strike In Shipyard

3,000 Workers Turn On 30 Policemen, Set Squad Car Afire

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Police stood by today to maintain order at the strike-bound Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., where a two-hour riot erupted after midnight.

A crowd estimated by newsmen as at least 3,000 persons turned on about 30 policemen in front of the shipyard. Some rioters overturned one police car, set it afire, and looted stores in the two-block area across from the shipyard.

The crowd began to disperse at about 2 a.m., as five fire trucks wheeled in to douse the blazing auto. About 20 persons were treated for minor injuries and released from four hospitals.

One, treated for a bullet wound in his foot, told hospital authorities he had been shot by police. He was not identified.

Police refused immediate comment on the cause of the riot, which broke out as striking members of the Peninsula Shipbuilders Association awaited the exit of non-strikers on the shipyard's night shift.

The association, which represents 15,000 of the yard's 21,500 workers, began Monday the yard's first general strike in its 81-year history. It was called on grievances which the union listed as lack of incentive benefits, a unfair job ratings and the suspension of three workers for failing to work overtime.

The association has lodged a complaint of unfair labor practices by the company with the National Labor Relations Board in Baltimore.

Milwaukee Woman Hit by Truck, Killed

Mrs. Estelle Burton, 85, Milwaukee, died at a hospital Monday, three hours after she was struck by a truck as she walked into its path from between two buildings. Authorities said the driver of the truck, which was backing up, could not see the woman.

Air Fire

Near Can Tho they attempted to penetrate an encampment held by black-clad pacification program workers. Circling American planes called "spookies," spewing Gatling-gun fire and flares, helped the South Vietnamese militia and pacification workers to beat off the attack.

Farther south near Can Tho the guerrillas made a similar effort, but the South Vietnamese said at least 48 of the enemy were killed.

Militia guarding the outpost beat off the guerrillas, and at dawn a battalion of South Vietnamese rangers plunged in from helicopters to pursue the Viet Cong. Ten Reds were captured. Several rangers and three policemen were killed and two were wounded.

A Review of Power

Khrushchev Was Fond of Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev, ruminating on his years in power, assesses the late President John F. Kennedy as "a real statesman" but calls could have established better former Vice President Richard M. Nixon a "good for nothing" an unprincipled puppet.

The former Soviet premier claims the Kremlin helped Kennedy to victory over Nixon in the 1960 presidential election by ignoring Nixon's request that pilot Francis Gary Powers be released from a Soviet prison.

In a National Broadcasting Co. television program Tuesday night, Khrushchev was also quoted as saying President Dwight D. Eisenhower was a good man but fell too easily under the influence of his aides and subordinates.

"If I were to compare the two American presidents whom I met, the comparison would obviously not be in favor of Eisenhower," said Khrushchev, speaking from his dacha or country house near Moscow.

Vienna Meeting
He recounted a conversation he said he had with Kennedy in Vienna in 1961 during which he told the late president, "The fact that you became president was due to us. We asked that Powers be released people who knew Eisenhower as a military leader and as a statesman, they did not hold him in much respect either in one field or in the other.

Burden of Power
"They considered him a mediocre general and a weak president because of the softness of his character and one must admit that he is a good man. He easily fell under the influence of his aides and subordinates. Obviously being a president and ruling the country was a great burden for him."

NBC said the tape and film for the hour-long program were obtained from private sources inside the Soviet Union. NBC also acknowledged the cooperation of Parade magazine which printed last weekend an article on Khrushchev's life in retirement.

As a result of the telecast on Khrushchev, NBC said it was told Tuesday by a Soviet news agency official that it would

Opposition Fading Truth-in-Lending Bill Gets Senate Okay 92-0; House Hearings to Start

WASHINGTON (AP) — House advocates of the so-called truth-in-lending bill, approved unanimously by the Senate, say the House will begin hearings on the items, $7.8 billion worth of single payments loans, and $3.6 billion worth of repair and modernization loans.

The controversial legislation cleared the Senate 92 to 0 Tuesday after only 2½ hours of debate.

House sponsors said hearings will be conducted by one of the bill's strong backers, Chairman Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., of the Consumer Affairs subcommittee.

Some opposition generated by retailers, bankers and others melted away in the Senate after several compromises were made in the bill's provisions.

Introduced in 1960
Many of its foes also became reconciled to its passage in some form during the lengthy consideration starting after former Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill., introduced it in 1960. The bill would require disclosure of the cost of loans on items for which $100 billion of debt now is outstanding. The theory is that this will enable consumers to shop for the most advantageous credit terms. The bill would not regulate interest rates or credit charges.

Consumers would have to be told two things on most debt transactions—the annual percentage interest rate and the total finance charge in dollars and cents.
Mortgage Loans
The biggest type of borrowing covered would be auto loans, now totaling more than $30 billion. Also affected would be $20

BY AUSTIN SCOTT
BOSTON (AP) — While 2,000 NAACP delegates relax in the early, easygoing days of their national convention, a small group mindful of a growing militancy among young Negroes is waging a behind-the-scenes fight to gain control of the 58-year-old organization.
For the fifth successive year, a group of delegates primarily in their 30s, dissatisfied with what they consider overly conservative policies, are trying to change the rules so they can control the policy-making board of directors.
These "young Turks," as they are known within the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, have won a slightly stronger hand each year.
They believe they may come out on top this year, but the present leadership doesn't agree.
Not a Chance
"They don't have a snowball's chance in hell at this convention," said one of the "old guard," as he walked away, laughing.
"This is not a personal attack on Roy Wilkins, Glouster Current, John Morsell or any of the old guard," said Chester I. Lewis, a Wichita, Kan., attorney who is generally considered a leader of the young Turks.
"Many of these old ducks have made a hell of a contribution in years past. I have great respect for the old guard, but they are no longer relevant. This happens to all of us. Let's face it. New ideas, new faces have to emerge if an organization is going to retain its sanity."

Much of the NAACP leadership has been in control for more than a decade.
Old-Line Politics
Lewis' fight, and the old guard's counter-attack, are being waged within bounds of the NAACP constitution in old-line political style—button-holing delegates, stacking the resolutions committee, gaining control of nominating committees.
His Kansas branch submitted the proposed constitutional amendment on which Lewis pins his hopes for victory. It would double the number of regional members on the 60-member board of directors, and halve the 18 which the board itself chooses.

With a proposed 44 members out of 60 elected regionally, Lewis believes, control would pass "back to the people. The NAACP mass membership is a lot more militant than its national posture."

Suggestions Given for Wise Furniture Buying

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Furniture is among the biggest investments you, one of America's 27 million in the 20-29 year age bracket, will make in your lifetime. Yet, the odds are you will go about this purchase careless, up as much as 10 per cent. In today's and tomorrow's columns you'll read a guide to furniture buying, based on interviews with and rules developed by Abraham & Straus of Brooklyn, Household Finance Corp. of Chicago and the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York.

Q: Should you buy a whole houseful (or apartment-full) of furniture all at once when you set up housekeeping?

Draw Up Plan

A: Few younger Americans, or even older ones, are in a position to make an investment involving so much money and forethought. A more realistic approach would be to draw up a two, three or five-year furniture buying plan to meet your own particular needs.

Q: Where should you begin?

A: By focusing on the basic, lowest you'll see for a long time. Forecasts are that furniture prices this fall will be up across-the-board and in some Decide in advance what you want each piece to perform in terms of durability, beauty, practicality, economy. But most of these are expensive items. Where is there room for savings?

A: Use your own individual skills to finish lower-cost unfinished furniture yourself. Rely on color and arrangement, rather than expensive craftsmanship, to achieve good style.

Fill out the "basics" you can't afford to buy new with good-quality second-hand furniture from second-hand stores, auctions, want ads in local newspapers and friends. Good quality used furniture is a better bargain both in durability and attractiveness than low-quality new furniture.

Seconds or slightly damaged furniture also can be a bargain, complete bedroom or dining room set, instead of individual much necessary repairs would cost.

A: You may save money if you actually need each item.

A: Consider an interior decorator or if you're planning and free counseling services on home furnishing problems in near-total ignorance or innocence.

It is particularly important you close this knowledge gap now because furniture prices during this summer's clearances probably will be the lowest you'll see for a long time. Forecasts are that furniture prices this fall will be up across-the-board and in some

Pregnancy Harmless to Figure, Mother Claims

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.
Remember the letter from "the girls at the P. L. Co.," who had been filled full of so many wild stories of what awful things pregnancy could do to their figures? Seems to me the writer of the following note deserves to be called an expert on the subject.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a practical nurse. It may help the girls to know about my size. I am the mother of 10 children. I am 5 feet 4 inches tall, weigh 119. Measurements 34-28-34, wear a 10 to 12 dress. I had twin boys, one 7 pounds, 8 ounces, the other 7 pounds 6. My first baby weighed 9 pounds 3 ounces. All my children are married and I enjoy 21 grandchildren.

Dr. Molner

I am a widow and enjoy working. I enjoy people and thrive on activity. Best of luck to the girls of the P. L. Co. — Mrs. A. B. W.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 45 and have been taking thyroid pills for a year and a half because of an underactive thyroid. My doctor tells me I'll probably need them the rest of my life. Now I hear that these pills can affect your heart.

change so that one can dispense with the pills? — Mrs. D. K.

Thyroid activity can change, but don't count on it. As to thyroid pills affecting the heart, that is true only if they are used in excess, speeding up the body's metabolism to a harmful degree.

In your case, your thyroid is not active enough, and the pills are being used to bring your thyroid requirements up to normal. Thus there is no reason for you to be harmed by them, but only helped.

Dear Dr. Molner: If one undergoes an operation for complete removal of the navel for umbilical hernia, does this mean a person never can have children? — M. L.

No, it has nothing to do with having children. The navel, or umbilicus, is the spot to which the umbilical cord was attached until a baby was born. Once a child is born, the navel has no further purpose.

ter, 10½, is a very active child and enjoys running, dancing, bike riding, etc. Every time she does a deep knee bend or squats, her knees crack. She does as many as 15 continuous knee bends, each one producing the same cracking sound in the knee. Is this normal or should I look into it? — Mrs. W. S.

The cracking is due to certain tendons riding over prominences of the bones, or the ends of the bones moving in the joint socket under tension. It may be annoying but is not abnormal. The fact that she is active and without joint pain or swelling implies that there is no serious condition involved.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Post-Crescent, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How To Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Antiballistic Missile Could be Necessity

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Red China's development toward nuclear rockets may force the Johnson administration toward a decision to spend billions of dollars for an antiballistic missile system which it doesn't want now.

Although most of the nation's top military men favor an ABM defense, President Johnson and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara are reluctant to give a go-ahead for the present Nike-X system for these reasons:

1. The extremely high cost, an estimated total of $22 billion to protect just 50 U.S. cities, leaving unprotected 130 cities each with 100,000 or more population.
2. Rapid technological advances that continually improve a missile's ability to hit a target. Such advances could make a system like Nike-X obsolete before it could be completely deployed, a matter of five or six years.
3. Before committing a huge sum to producing Nike-X, the United States might have to conduct atmospheric nuclear tests to make sure the system worked. This would violate the limited nuclear test-ban treaty.

McNamara commented: "Studies we have made cast doubt on the ability of any system to protect our population against Soviet attack."

President Johnson has asked $375 million in the fiscal 1968 budget for contingency production of the Nike-X system. But he has indicated he would withhold an order to produce a missile killer pending the outcome of diplomatic contacts seeking agreement with the Soviet Union not to deploy ABMs.

The Russians have started constructing at least a limited

31 miles high, indicating that the bomb was sent aloft by a missile.

Some American experts, while opposing an all-out ABM system, believe this country should provide some protection against a possible surprise attack from a substantial force of nuclear-tipped missiles from Red China.

Others favor holding off until improvements in technology make possible more sophisticated systems, such as exploding huge nuclear bombs in the path of incoming warheads, or orbiting a series of satellites that could destroy a rocket as it lifted off.

Research Testing

Much research and testing is being done in these areas, as well as on projects designed to intercept, inspect and destroy hostile satellites.

Nike-X consists of two separate rocket systems. The Spartan, with a range of 400 miles, would intercept a warhead outside the atmosphere. Warheads that eluded the Spartan would be attacked below 100,000 feet by the Sprint.

Both these ABMs destroy the targets within a nuclear explosion and merely have to detect their charges within a mile of the warhead.

In the Soviet Union, like the United States, has complex decoys to fool tracking radar and is producing missiles with maneuverable, multiple warheads. U.S. Minuteman and Polaris missiles are believed able to carry three warheads each. There has been speculation that the large Soviet ICBM might have as many as 15 in a single nose cone.

Exploding very large nuclear bombs in the paths of such concentrated attacks thus would be better than the "one-on-one" concept of Nike-X. Such bombs would have the force of 100 or more megatons, more than 10 times the power of the Nike-X bombs.

Proliferation of a few of these large rocket-carried bombs at the proper altitude and latitude could trap dense quantities of radiation particles in the earth's magnetic field.

The explosion would disable the missile within several Industries Have Alternative: Follow Pollution Guidelines or Leave State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Will Wisconsin's newly adopted standards for interstate water quality drive industry out of the state?

At least one such prediction was made during the water quality hearings conducted prior to the adoption of standards by the Department of Resource Development.

William Neddersen, an official of the Wisconsin Public Service Corp. at Green Bay, sounded this warning:

"If our company and other utilities are required to meet unrealistic water standards as far as temperature is concerned, we not only would be in the position of having to shut down some of the present plants . . . but would be faced with a serious question as to whether the best alternate solution for new plants might be to put them across the borders in other states with less restrictive thermo limits and build longer transmission lines."

Wisconsin's standards for interstate waters set a maximum temperature of 89 degrees for industrial and cooling water use. This compares with proposed maximums of 93 in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana, and 90 in Minnesota.

Pulp and paper mill operators are also concerned.

Walter A. Sherman, Park Falls, assistant general manager of the Flambeau Paper Division, testified at a water standards hearing held at Hurley last week.

Under extensive research is the possible use of powerful lasers or radiation beams which could concentrate enough energy in a pencil-thin line to obliterate either warheads or satellites.

The United States also is working on a second generation antisatellite system. It already has the Nike-Zeus rockets on Kwajalein Island and Thor missiles on Johnston Island in the Pacific Ocean. But these early systems are limited, and de-cost being so high that it would force the sulphite mill to shut down," Sherman said. He put the economic loss which might result as more than $2 million per year, which "would make Park Falls a depressed area."

For various reasons, including the economics of pollution, four pulp mills are being shut down in Wisconsin. Mills at Eau Claire and Niagara are out of operation; a small semi-chemical pulping process at Rhinelander is closing, and a sulphite mill at Kimberly is being phased out, with a 1968 shutdown planned.

In the state's less-industrialized north country, this situation worries business and labor leaders.

Raymond Long, international representative for the United Papermakers and Paperworkers, stated that "we certainly do not go along with water pollution, (but) placing of too high water criteria control standards at this time will certainly close down many of the old mills."

Another labor leader, Arthur Herbst, put the concern over pollution's effect on fishing in this perspective:

"Without a job we can't afford the luxury of a fishing license."

In the heated controversy which swirls around the pollution issue, however, these pleas are met by counter-arguments.

Consider this statement by Dr. Edward Schneberger, superintendent of the Conservation Department's research and planning division, at the Green Bay hearing:

"When I was first involved with pollution in the 1930s, we write-offs needed."

"We do not know how to keep the oxygen higher without the lead the polluter into a cleanup

The Post-Crescent C 1

POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR
by Lillian Mackesy

Christmas in July is a wonderful idea with holiday cheer busting out all over in kitchens of those homemakers who like to make jams, jellies and other garden-fresh edibles for friends and relatives. Homemade preserves, jams, chutney, sauces and relishes make delicious Christmas gifts... they also are appreciated when they are flavorful, different or a treasured family recipe.

Fresh Strawberry-Orange Jam, for instance, will make a prized remembrance for friends and relatives who seem to have everything under the sun. There's always an aunt or bachelor uncle who poses a problem for Christmas giving. A collection of preserves may be just the answer for them.

Besides, whittling down shopping hours at Christmas time is a fine idea... as each fruit and vegetable comes into its peak of season and consequent lowest price, search for a special recipe to match the homegrown product.

While vacationing this summer, shop around for unusual baskets or other containers for carrying or packaging the "put-up" product. If the gift is going to a neighbor who has done so much for you in little ways, pour jam or relish in handsome glass goblets to make a set after the food is gone. Besides attractive jam and jelly glasses available now, there are apothecary jars, wicker hamper to hold glasses and sauce dishes that make lovely "packages."

Fancy and quaint labels "from the kitchen of" also may be found at most novelty counters, so that the recipe may be included with the gift. Keep a system of bookkeeping in a recipe file to make the giving a simple matter of last-minute furbelows as the holidays grow closer. Otherwise, which gift for whom may become a burden to remember. Wrapped in brown or ordinary paper... or slipped into a plain brown sack, each type of preserved goods may be identified, dated and gift-named for whom in pencil on the outside. Then, last minute packaging is a cinch.

Suggested recipes for today are all exciting. Peaches or cubed cantaloupe combine with cranberry-orange relish to make a wonderful chutney that goes so well with meats. The ruby-red cranberry in the form of cocktail juice combines with dried mincemeat, raisins and chopped apple for another delicious relish.

Then there is a group of "pickled" relishes... green olives marinated in gin... Scotch whole green beans... and Bourbon Beets. These are easy to make and only take marinating for 24 hours or longer.

Another excellent strawberry jam has the subtle addition of chopped rhubarb to accent the berry flavor. Unless the cook chooses to tell, nobody will know about the rhubarb, but those on the receiving end will wonder how the jam was made in such full berry flavor.

Here they all are with a Merry Christmas in July to you.

French Chemist Invented First Oleomargarine Back in 1869

Wisconsin homemakers who created an emulsion using beef choose to use colored margarine fat as a base now available in Wisconsin. His product was acclaimed that it was a French chemist and its manufacture spread who invented the first oleomargarine rapidly. The inventor called his new spread "oleomargarine." The word "margarine" comes from the ancient Greek "margarites," meaning pearl-like. "Oleo" signifies the beef fat used as the base.

Lowie Napoleon, chiefly remembered as the nephew of a celebrated military uncle, was the man who issued the court command for a nationwide contest for a butter substitute. It all started with public grumblings over high prices of butter in those days and motivated by a near-mutiny in His Majesty's fleet because of rancid butter. Napoleon III in 1869 demanded that a substitute be found and he found in a hurry. Winner of the competition that followed was French chemist Hippolyte Mege-Mouries, who and "cultured" to create its pleasing flavor, and a small amount of salt.

The food fat portion of every pound offers a relatively high level of linoleic acid — considered to be a vital element in the diet.

Improved Through Years
When first created, margarine was indeed as nutritious and economical as Napoleon could want. But it was not very tasty nor easy to spread.

New oil processing methods eventually made it possible for manufacturers to improve the spreading qualities. As time went on, the margarine industry also found improved blending and production techniques which changed the texture and flavor constantly for the better.

A 1950 federal law removing restrictions against the sale of colored margarine gave the product its greatest acceleration. The law removed a 10-cent per pound tax on yellow margarine.

Today, yellow margarine is a nationwide spread available, as of July 1, in all 50 states.

Not All Alike

Not all modern margarines are alike. Each manufacturer has his own formula and methods of manufacture. Each different factor influences taste, texture, aroma and, depending on consumer preference, ultimate satisfaction.

Today's homemaker must read the listed ingredients to find out which margarine she wants to use. Besides the different ingredients, a single manufacturer of margarine may offer several varieties, or he may offer different packaging for the convenience of the consumer.

There is, for instance, even a diet margarine that is a substitute for margarine.

There is whipped margarine that comes in tubs; there are packages of individual quarter pound bars wrapped in special foil and packed in a wax-impregnated and laminated foil one-pound carton. The margarine comes hard or soft, whipped or solid.

All margarines made in the United States must meet Federal Food and Drug requirements, but the kind each homemaker wants depends upon family tastes and desire to use the golden yellow table spread.

and seed as necessary. Put in saucepan, cover with water and boil 15 minutes; drain and repeat with fresh water. Drain thoroughly and chop or dice fine.

Combine oranges and crushed berries in a large saucepan. Add sugar and mix well. Place over high heat; bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly.

Remove from heat and stir in pectin immediately. Stir and skim for five minutes to cool slightly and prevent floating fruit. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately with hot paraffin. Recipe makes 10 medium glasses.

PEACH OR CANTALOUPE CRANBERRY CHUTNEY
18 firm peaches or 4 large firm cantaloupes
1 jar (14 ounces)

cranberry-orange relish
2 cups raisins
2 cinnamon sticks
1 piece ginger root
12 whole cloves
3 cups sugar
1 cup cider vinegar

Dip peaches into boiling water for a few seconds, or until skins can be pulled off easily with a sharp knife. Halve, pit and cube peaches.

If using cantaloupes, peel, halve and remove seeds. Cube. In a large saucepan or kettle, mix peaches or cantaloupes with cranberry-orange relish and raisins.

Tie spices in cheesecloth bag; add to mixture. Stir in sugar and vinegar. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer 15 minutes, stirring constantly.

Remove spice bag. Spoon mixture while hot into sterilized jars or glasses. Top with a thin layer of melted paraffin. Cool, then cap and store in cool, dark place. Recipe makes about six pints.

CRANBERRY MINCEMEAT RELISH

1 package (9 ounces) packaged dried mincemeat
2 cups cranberry juice cocktail
1 red apple, cored and chopped
1/4 cup drained sweet pickle relish

Crumble mincemeat into a saucepan. Add cranberry juice. Bring to a boil. Simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and cool. Stir in remaining ingredients. Chill until ready to serve. Recipe makes about three and one-half cups.

PICKLED OLIVES

green olives

1/4 cup gin
Drain 1/4 cup of the brine from olives, replace with gin. Wash outside of jar and relabel in your own design. Cover. Marinate 24 hours or longer.

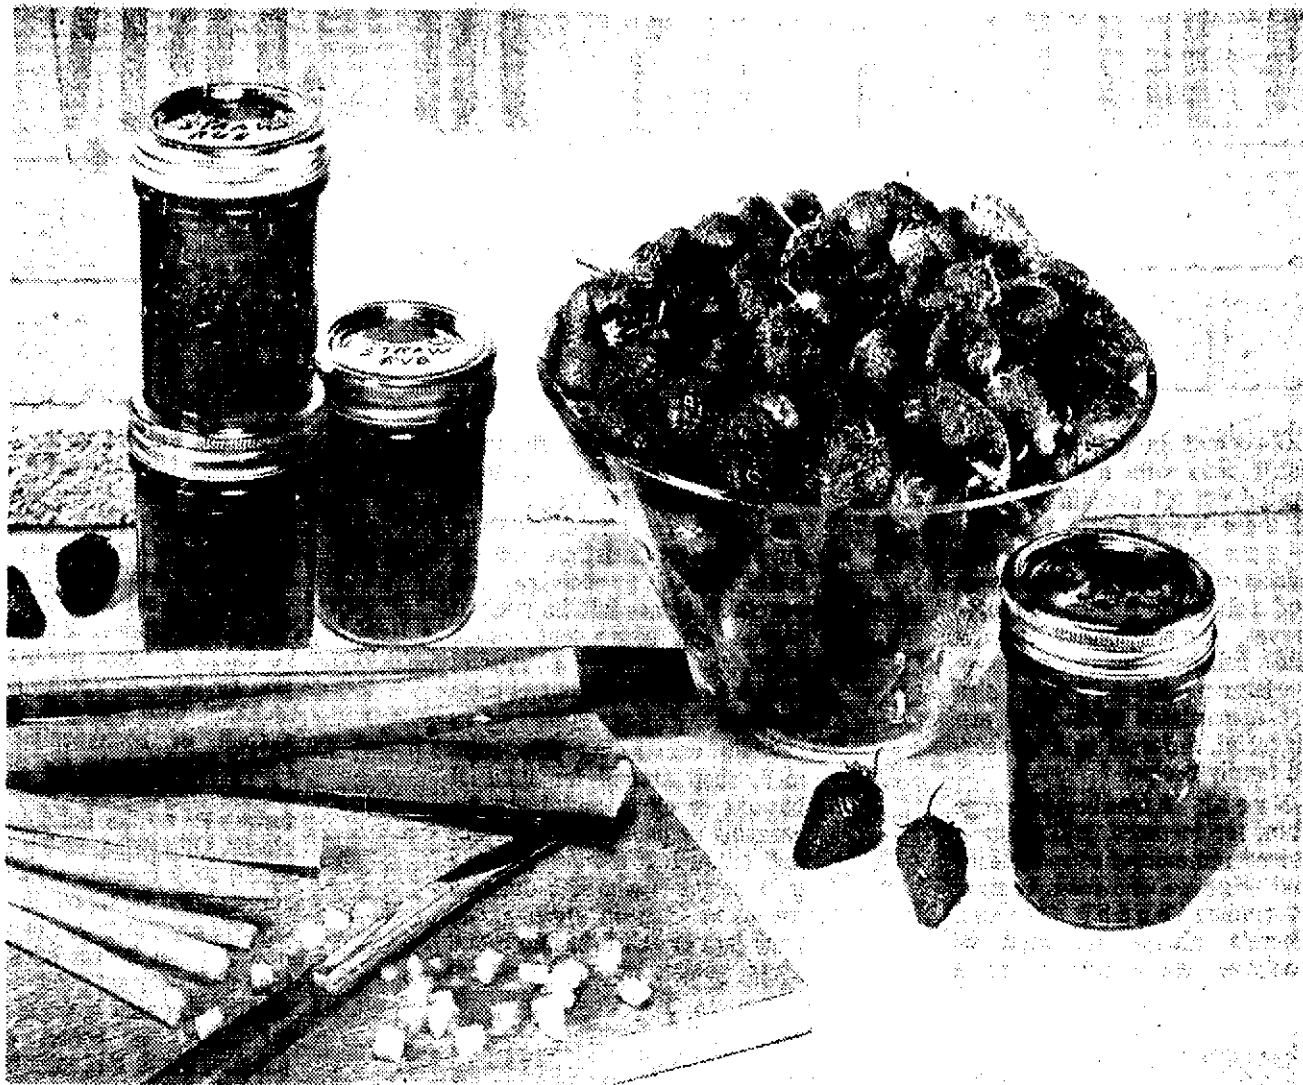

SCOTCHED BEANS

1 pound whole green beans, cleaned
1 cup water
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pickling spice
1/4 cup Scotch

Cook green beans 10 minutes in salted water. Drain, reserving cooking water. Pack beans upright in tall, narrow glass container. Pour pickling spice and Scotch over beans. Fill container with hot cooking water. Cover. Marinate 24 hours.

BOURBON BEETS

1 can (1 pound) sliced beets
1/2 teaspoon salt

Strawberries and rhubarb long have had an affinity for each other. The freshly picked stalks of rhubarb are the secret ingredient in this jam. A small amount gives the berries just the right amount of tartness which seems to boost the strawberry flavor. This is a soft, slow setting jam.

Swift makes only meats for babies. In fact, we invented them. Considering that meat is your baby's most important growth food, wouldn't you feel better trusting the specialist?

1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
1/4 cup bourbon

Drain beets, reserving liquid. Place beets in a glass container. Add seasonings, vinegar, Bourbon and beet liquor to fill. Cover. Marinate 24 hours or longer.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB JAM

3 1/2 cups strawberries
1 1/2 cups chopped rhubarb
6 1/2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons water
1 box powdered fruit pectin
1/4 teaspoon salt

Use seven or eight half-pint jars, dome lids and bands. Wash and rinse jars and lids; cover with boiling water. Bring water to boiling. Turn off heat.

Wash, drain, remove "caps" from berries; chop or crush and measure.

Wash, drain and split rhubarb into two or more pieces lengthwise; then slice crosswise. Pieces should be no larger than a grain of corn.

Measure sugar and set it aside. Put rhubarb and two tablespoons of water in large kettle.

Cook over medium heat until rhubarb is tender.

While rhubarb cooks, remove jars and lids from hot water; invert on towel to drain.

Add strawberries, pectin and salt to rhubarb. Turn heat to high. Stir mixture while bringing to fast bubbling boil. Stir in sugar, bring mixture back to fast boil. Keep stirring.

Boil hard one minute. Remove from heat. Set jars upright. Skim foam from jam. Pour boiling hot jam to within one-eighth inch of top of jars. (If let stand until almost cold then finding a good china marker, you spill jam on jar, wipe it shake jars to mix fruit through use a cheap eyebrow pencil to away.) Put lid on jar; screw syrup band tight. If fruit rises to top. Tip: If you have trouble the date.

Swift, the meat specialist, does more for your baby.

Working Wife's Salary Doesn't Deliver Full Value

Two incomes may be better than one when a family is interested in purchasing a home. However, working wives must remember that their income should not be considered at its full value.

The working wife creates some added expenses such as transportation, clothes and meals, which must be paid out of the additional earnings. Also, should the wife's income suddenly be turned off because she chooses not to work, the discounted value of her salary reduces the shock of the earning loss from the overall family income.

In some cases, however, individual circumstances will cause the working wife's salary to be worth 70 to 80 per cent of value. Such would be the case of the working wife whose family is

Moderate Effect

The working wife by no means represents cure-all to family income. Her salary can only be considered to have a moderate effect on total family

New Fabrics Erase Many Travel Cares

Traveling with children can be much easier today with easy-care-for clothes. Durable press, colorfastness, simple fashions, and even disposable dresses for the girls help cut down clothes care, says Ruth Diez, textile and clothing specialist at the University of Wisconsin.

When buying children's clothes check labels for care instructions to see if the garment is machine washable. The label should also indicate the amount of shrinkage, if any, you should expect. If the item is colored, check to see if it is colorfast. You won't find these items listed on all labels but it's a good idea to be aware of them, suggests Miss Diez.

Cut Down Raveling
Overcast seams or a firmly woven fabric will cut down on seam raveling. Check the trim to see if it is machine washable.

Durable press clothes can really cut down on ironing — a problem when your traveling. There are other fabrics such as seersucker, crinkle crepe, corduroy or terry cloth that are suitable for playclothes and can be machine washed and dried without ironing. Automatic laundries are available along travel routes and are even featured at many camp grounds and trailer sites.

Disposable play clothes now on the market for the children's wear might be a good idea for car travel. Nonwoven fabrics will soon be available by the yard if you want to zip up your own dresses or you can buy dresses already made at a reasonable cost. The ready-made dresses are sleeveless, faded flight—to a landing in the rain Monday at her home airport at Willow Run near Ypsilanti.

But for the time being, all the 30-year-old housewife wants to do is "sit down on something that doesn't move."

earnings. The working wife does, brought on by the wife's job and contribute to the family's ability to buy a better home.

The number of employed married women in America has been on the increase since World War II and is expected to continue. About 14 million women now make up the corps of working wives. That represents one out of every three wives. By 1977, it is anticipated that half of the family expenditures in this country will come from two job families.

Nice to Have Families supplementing their income through a working wife should remember that the secondary salary should not be considered at its full value because of the added expense

Flyer Completes Earhart Route

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — Ann Pellegrino, home from her 28-day, 30,000 mile globe-circling flight along the route taken in 1937 by Amelia Earhart, says she will write a book and a couple of magazine articles about her journey.

Lynda Bird Vacations In England

LONDON (AP) — Lynda Bird Johnson arrived Tuesday for a London vacation and her first trip to Britain.

The President's 23-year-old daughter came on a scheduled airliner and was met at London Airport by U.S. Ambassador and Mrs. David Bruce, with whom she will stay.

Wearing a canary yellow coat and matching wide-brim hat, Miss Johnson hurried down the steps of the plane, waved to embassy officials, climbed into the ambassador's car and rode off.

Travels Unknown
There was only a small crowd of regular passengers at the airport and most of them did not know who she was.

Miss Johnson was accompanied by two U.S. Secret Service men who ran down the steps of the jet as soon as the doors opened. Security men from the U.S. Embassy and Scotland Yard and airport police were also on duty.

Bruce said Miss Johnson's visit was "purely a private one. I did not know until yesterday that she was coming."

Miss Johnson's trip was not announced in Washington until after she had left New York.

Sugar-Free Jam Boon to Dieters

Dieters now can enjoy the luxury of a sweet-tasting spread on their breakfast toast. The following Strawberry Jam recipe, developed by the home economics staff of Abbott Laboratories, is completely sugar-free, and very low in calories.

Proper spreading consistency is achieved through the use of a small amount of unflavored gelatin. Delicious calorie-free sweetness is provided by the natural-tasting, non-caloric sweetener.

Note that each tablespoon of the sugar-free jam contains only five calories, as compared with 26 calories made with sugar.

Since this jam should be refrigerated, make a small amount at a time, as it is needed. If preparation of a

Tall Beauties at Georgia Pageant

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Twenty-three beauties competing in the annual Miss Tall Universe Pageant today generally agree on one thing—they wish there were more tall men.

But Leslie Kinsley, a 6-foot blue-eyed Miss San Francisco adds, "Size doesn't guarantee anything."

A good clue to a good man is that your height doesn't bother him," says Emerald Jones, 5 feet 11½, who represents the San Fernando Valley.

She also says people "just seem to be fascinated" by tall girls.

The contestant, all in blue bathing suits, were interviewed at poolside Tuesday. They range from 5 feet 10 to 6 feet 4.

One of them will be chosen Miss Tall Universe to succeed Adria Easton of Boulder, Colo.

The beauty pageant is being held in conjunction with the 21st annual convention of Tall Clubs International. About 250 members of Tall Clubs throughout the United States and Canada are attending.

A Lovelier You

By Mary Sue Miller

Nail Biting

A lovely mother writes: My daughter, aged 15, has the ugly habit of biting her nails. Have you any suggestions about how to break it? Nothing I have tried works.

The Answer: Most nail biters claim they "just can't stop." Yet they are well aware of how unattractive the habit is in itself, and how ruinous to the appearance of the hands. What they may not know is that bitten nails become permanently thick and stubby in time.

For anyone past the age of 13 there are several practical deterrents to the habit. The best is to give the hands three complete manicures a week. To set the pattern for a young girl, treat her to a few professional manicures.

A manicure, wherever given, must include soaking the hands, oiling and pushing back cuticles.

Picnickers Will Find Specials

Many food specials center around outdoor meals at this time of year, says Rosemary Stare, University of Wisconsin consumer marketing specialist.

Forequarter beef and fresh pork are expected to be highlights. Wise choices in beef should include chuck — roasts and steaks — and ground beef. Beef liver is economical every week. Pork values may include chops, loin roasts, steaks, sausage and frankfurters.

Limited Fruit Supply

Peaches, nectarines, plums, grapes and pears from California will be in limited supply this summer. This may keep prices higher than normal. Peaches are also coming from South Carolina where the crop is moderate in size and the quality is good.

The cantaloupe crop is about three weeks later than usual, so supplies should be increasing and bring lower prices. Sweet things: cherries may be lower-priced than they have been. Demand for watermelon has been light as the weather stays cold. Prices on watermelon have been quite attractive.

Some stores now have Wisconsin strawberries — quality is good. The movement of many citrus fruits slows in the summer. Most oranges and grapefruit come from California. Frozen orange concentrate continues a very good value.

Good Quality

Lettuce, although still higher-priced than normal for this time of year, is down from a few weeks ago. Many ready items, such as spinach and leaf lettuce are available from local growers. Quality is good and prices are reasonable.

Some poultry items are up slightly in price, but fryers, turkey and roasters are likely to feature items. Grade A, large eggs continue to be a good buy.

To ease your food budget, use eggs often. For best flavor and cooking quality, use eggs within a week after purchase. After long storage they can have an "off flavor" and they may lose some thickening and leavening power.

Put eggs in the refrigerator as fast as possible after you buy them. They will lose as much freshness in a few hours in a hot car or kitchen as they will lose in a week in the refrigerator.

Elected to National Pi Beta Phi Post

Mrs. Andrew Coenen Little Chute, was elected National Director of Scholarship for Pi Beta Phi at the organization's centennial year convention last week in Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. A. John Hilde, Neenah, also attended the meeting, marking the 100th anniversary of one of the oldest national sororities for college women. Pi Beta Phi has 111 college chapters and 330 alumnae clubs with 82,128 living members.

Tell Troth of Miss Sommers

HORTONVILLE — Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sommers, route 2, Hortonville, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Luella, to Peter Philippi. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Philippi, Dale.

Mr. Philippi is employed by Appleton Coated Paper Co., Appleton.

Correction

The American Association of Retired Persons has planned a trip to Kubach's Country Inn at Kellnersville and a tour of the West estate at Manitowoc Thursday. Members will leave at 10:30 a.m. from the East Parking Ramp. The name of the group was incorrectly stated in the Sunday Post-Crescent meeting note.

When snack time comes around, serve Root Beer Popcorn Crunch and watch it disappear quickly. This candy-like confection is so easily made, you'll wish you had thought of it first. Root beer, sugar, corn syrup and butter are heated together, then cooked to the hard crack stage. This fine syrup then is poured over freshly popped popcorn and salted pecan halves. Toss the mixture until all the popcorn and nuts are coated.

Root Beer Enhances Holiday Popcorn Snack

It's always a smart move to be prepared for company on a holiday and here's a snack food that will be applauded and devoured heartily.

It's popcorn with a new flavor — that of root beer to create a taste hard to resist. This is a kitchen chore the youngsters can take over easily and not mind doing one bit so long as they can share the treat.

ROOT BEER POPCORN CRUNCH

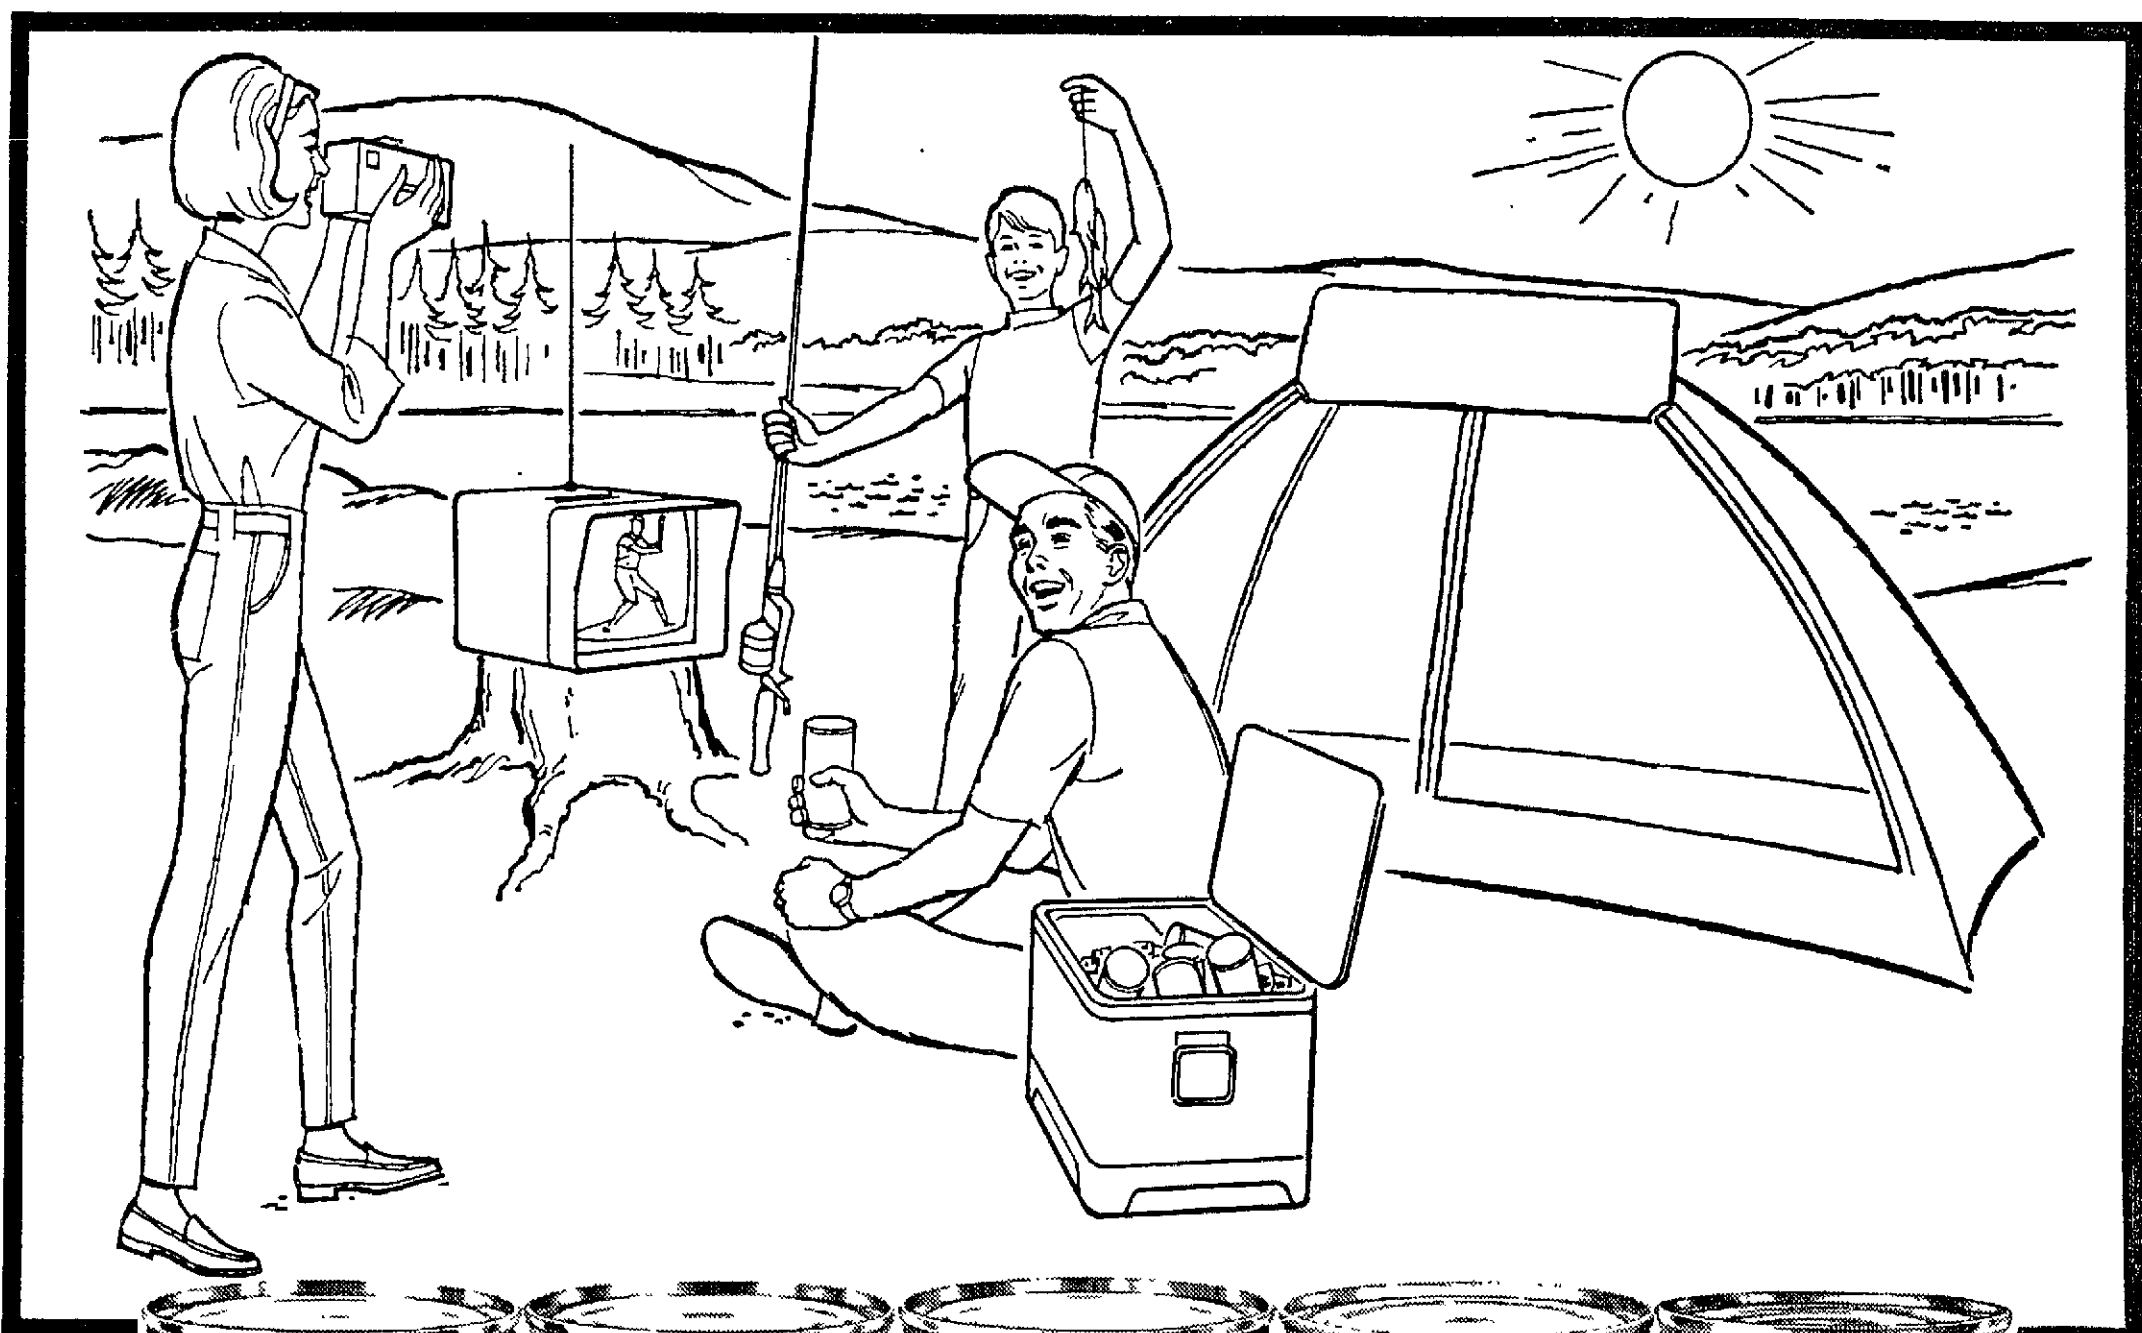

8 cups popped popcorn
1 cup salted pecans
2 containers (12 ounce) root beer
1 cup sugar

Combine popcorn and pecans in a buttered bowl. Pour root beer slowly down side of heavy saucepan; add sugar, syrup, butter and salt; stir gently but well. Bring to a boil, stirring until sugar melts. Cook to 290 degrees (hard crack stage). Pour in a fine stream over popcorn and pecans; toss gently until popcorn is coated with syrup. Spread onto two buttered baking sheets and separate with a fork. Cool. Recipe makes 12 cups.

½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup butter or margarine
¼ teaspoon salt

Superintendent, Principal to Get 7.5 Per Cent Raise Starting Aug. 1

KAUKAUNA — Salary in-creases of approximately 7.5 per cent for the superintendent of schools and the high school principal were approved by the board of education in its Tuesday meeting. The adjustments correspond to salary increases for teachers approved earlier this year.

Board members accepted the resignation of Stephen Schultz as music director. Schultz was awarded a scholarship to Northwestern University enabling him to serve as assistant professor while working toward a doctorate degree in music. Board members felt the opportunity should not be denied.

Council Group Votes Approval Of Housing Code

KAUKAUNA — The legislative committee of the common council voted Monday night to recommend to the common council the adoption of housing and fire codes for the city.

The housing code, prepared by Eugene Franchetti, executive director of the Fox Valley Council of Governments, also will be proposed for adoption by other communities in the council. The code conforms to regulations required by the office of Housing and Urban Development to make a community eligible for aid for the federal housing authority.

The fire code, to be drawn up by city attorney Donald Green, is patterned after a model code drawn by a fire insurance rating bureau.

Woman Decries Twiggy Styles Forced on Middle-Aged Buyers

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The attorney who complained about the too tight, too short skirts on broad-beamed women prompts my first letter to a newspaper.

He has a point, and I would not deny it, but I feel the blame should be placed where it belongs — squarely on the manufacturers of women's clothes. To begin with, the manufacturers operate on the theory that all women are built like (God forbid) Twiggy. What's-Her-Name. If my 17-year-old daughter was five feet six and too short and too tight across, weighed 91 pounds, I'd rush her to the hospital.

Any middle-aged woman who is in desperation, the saleswoman has tried to buy clothes lately, sighed. "As you can see, Ma-knows that the dresses are cut dame, bosoms are out this for flat-chested, slim-hipped year."

Landers

bean poles. Last week I spent the better part of two days shopping for a simple afternoon shift. Everything I tried on was not over endowed. Finally, in getting married in a few weeks, and I need your advice at once. My grandmother passed away last month so we are having a

So please, Ann Landers, put the blast on the people who manufacture women's dresses. Ask them to give some consideration to the middle-aged female who wants to look stylish but not Way-Out Kooksville. Thank you. — Voice of America

Dear Voice: Here's your letter, and I hope Women's Wear Daily and other publications will take time out from insulting Mrs. Hubert Humphrey (who makes many of her own dresses and does a beautiful job of it) to take note of your letter and pass the word.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am very small wedding in the pastor's study. Only the immediate family will be present. My fiancé's aunt has made quite an issue of my refusal to wear a white gown and veil. She says any girl who does not marry in the traditional white is admitting she has not earned the privilege.

I say this is a lot of applesauce. The last girl I saw wearing traditional white was five months pregnant — and looked it.

My future husband says I should wear what I please. I want to keep peace in the family, but I think it is dumb to wear a bridal gown and veil in the pastor's study when only 14 people will be present. Please advise. — Just Practical

Dear Just: Wear whatever you wish and don't let anyone put you on the defensive. The notion that a white wedding gown is proof of virginity is absurd.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother who lost his wife five years ago married a nice, plain woman who has grown children. We were all happy to see Harry get married because he has been a lonely man.

Yesterday we went to call on Harry and his new wife. I was surprised to see 12 pictures of her grandchildren on the piano — and in cardboard folders! While I am at it I should tell you that she had one of those old Spanish shawls draped over the piano.

Didn't this sort of thing go out with World War I? Should I

Overbid Leads to Lucky Slam

Even the best players in the world sometimes bid too much, and then they need a bit of luck. Camillo Pabis-Ticci was lucky when he overbid today's hand in the recent world championship, but he also picked the right finesse.

South's opening bid of one club followed by his jump to two spades promised the kind of hand that Americans would open with a forcing two-bid. South didn't quite have his bid, and he couldn't put the brakes on until he was in a slam.

If South tried a spade finesse at the second trick, his slam would land on the rocks. The trouble is not that the spade finesse loses, but that it doesn't surely help declarer even if it succeeds. For example, give East K-7-6 instead of 8-7-6 of spades and one spade finesse does South no particular good.

After winning the first trick with dummy's king of hearts, Pabis-Ticci led the king of diamonds for a ruffing finesse. Fortunately for the pride of Florence, East had the ace of diamonds, and this did South quite a bit of good.

Ruffs Ace

South ruffed East's ace of diamonds and led out the ace and jack of spades. West took the king of spades and led another heart to dummy's ace.

Declarer had to hope he could safely cash two high diamonds to get rid of two low clubs. Then he tried the club finesse, heaving a big sigh if relief when it worked. At last he could draw the last trump and claim the rest.

It brought to mind the old story about the hobo who sat down on a park bench just in time to be spattered by a bird flying overhead. The hobo looked up and complained bitterly: "For the rich they sing!"

Daily Question

As dealer, you hold: S-A Q J 10 9 4 2, H-6 2, D-None, C-A J 6 5. What do you say?

Answer: Bid one spade. The hand is not quite good enough for a forcing bid of two spades, but it is far too powerful for a shutout bid of four spades.

Coeds Help Delinquent Youths Live in Society

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
AP Science Writer
STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — The young Negro prisoner was so hostile his clenched jaws constantly quivered. No staffer at the Preston School of Industry could penetrate Tommy's shell. But Julie did.

Julie is a senior at the University of the Pacific; pretty, intelligent, vivacious, white, member of a leading sorority, and very sensitive to feelings of other people.

Tommy's brother had been killed in an Alabama race riot. At 18 Tommy was a ward of California, and "the most burn, white, burn" inmate in the state school for delinquent boys," as Prof. William F. Byron described him.

Tommy was paroled recently, and he wrote to Julie. He addressed the letter "To Miss Wonderful."

"Thanks to you I am sure I'll make it on the streets because I understand people better, and I now understand that other people are human too. Just the short time I've known you has made me a better guy."

Various Projects
Julie, with other girls and boys from the university, visited the school year just ended and the California Youth Authority school at Jone, 40 miles north-east of Stockton, once a week. They ate a Byron committee bars those dinner with the wards, then types. The students don't get paid. Only about one-third of them, talking, taking part in various group projects, even in occasional dance sessions.

Byron, retired chairman of the division of social work at son Northwestern University, who came to Pacific in 1962 as visiting professor of sociology and director of the unique program, has directed it. A national network of juvenile courts and juvenile delinquency programs, Byron is a major force in the field. Most of the juvenile delinquency programs are in the hands of Byron, says a resident of the school, who says the school is a "great place" and "a great experience."

Victor Haen Named to Head School Board

KAUKAUNA — Victor Haen, an eight-year veteran on the board of education, was elected president of the board Tuesday evening to replace Dr. George Behnke who did not run for reelection to the board this year.

Haen was elected on the second ballot with Joseph Schouten and Robert Main also receiving votes. Main was named vice president and Olin Dwyer was re-elected secretary.

Village Band Plans Park Concert Tonight

KIMBERLY — The Community Band, directed by Gordon Kotkowsky, will continue its series of summer concerts at 7:30 tonight at Sunset Point Park with a variety of popular, semi-classical and traditional band numbers to be played.

The wards get a chance to visit the college campus. After one such visit, one commented, "Yesterday was more than just a trip for me. Roaming the grounds alone really gave me a sense of responsibility and trust, but the funny thing is it just comes natural."

No Escapes
There have been no untoward incidents of any kind during such visits. And no escapes. "We wouldn't want to harm the program," the wards explain. The Close school presently houses 400 boys aged 14 to 18. 70 per cent of them 16 or under. Preston's 400 boys are older, 17 to 21.

What happens when a boy talks to you with you?" Julie was asked. "It must happen then under the circumstances." Ask Alton about that," Julie suggested. "We just talk them out of it," said Alton Tukimura, a pretty graduate who has decided to go into correctional work. "We talk about it and they get over it." Julie it turned out, didn't talk someone out of it. She and a former ward now a dynamic student leader in the campus program, recently announced their engagement.

Children Must be Taught to Associate, Then Generalize

BY LESLIE J. NASON, Ed D. sentences — "No, the chair is his mother asks questions for not an animal." Or, "The chair which the answers require the use of such words. At the time a child enters the first grade he should be able to recognize that dogs and cats and horses are all animals, that teacher. A large group of objects could be considered as soft: chairs and tables and beds are all pieces of furniture. First, he must learn to recognize a dog and a cat, and a cow and later get to know them all as animals.

Leslie J. Nason, Ph. Ed.

While children learn to associate names with objects more or less automatically, generalization is an adult idea and my need to be taught.

Conversation between parents and children provides an opportunity for training in the correct use of collective nouns. Parents should also go out of their way to give children exercise in the negative approach to ideas.

Try Asking Questions

Parents can make sure their children have the proper words for groups of things in their usable vocabulary by asking a few pertinent questions.

Mother asks: "Is the chair an animal?" And encourages the child to answer in complete sentences — "No, the chair is his mother asks questions for not an animal." Or, "The chair which the answers require the use of such words. First, he must learn to recognize a dog and a cat, and a cow and later get to know them all as animals.

A flock of birds, a herd of cows, a gang of boys, a set of dishes, relatives and playmates — the list of generalizations goes on and on, and they are adult concepts. The more familiar a child is with them as he enters school, the easier it will be for him to understand teaching.

For example: The child must know the difference between words and pictures to understand what is happening as his mother or teacher reads stories from a book. Otherwise he may get to depend too heavily on the pictures and eventually have parroted words except when

Parroted Words Don't Help

Here is an opportunity for the child to get practice in paying attention and in being taught. Also, for him to make mistakes without being laughed at.

He probably will not use generalized words except when

Girl Herself Should Decide Which Activities Are Best

BY DR. EVE JONES

DEAR DR. JONES: I suppose you must have answered my question many times before, but I hope you'll take the trouble to help me with this now. Our daughter is an excellent

Her teacher says our daughter may be good enough to enter the Olympics in a few years, but she needs individual lessons, and she should take a lesson every afternoon.

Typhoon Clara Lashes Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) —

Typhoon Clara hit the northeast coast of Formosa on Tuesday with winds of 105 miles an hour. It struck between Taipei and Hualien, on the Pacific Coast 75 miles to the south.

Torrential downpours battered the capital and other areas as the typhoon cut its way northwestward on a path toward the Formosa Strait and Communist China.

The forces of the storm were blunted by the mountains in its path. Clara was the first typhoon to hit Formosa this year.

Platt Leads Early Finishes; Brewer's
70 Paces Americans

By THOMAS A. REEDY
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOYLAKE, England (AP) — Lionel Platts, a 33-year-old English pro, seized the early first round lead Wednesday with a four-under-par 68 in the British Open Golf Championship, but America's big guns remained in close contention.

Platts, with a dramatic 32 on the back nine, took a one-stroke edge over Peter Jones, a 24-year-old English protegee of Henry Cotton, and Jimmy Hume of Scotland, who shot 69s.

The best early score for the 70 by Masters champion Gary Brewer Jr., of Dallas, which tied him with the veteran Kel Nagle of Australia.

Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., had a 71 and Deane Beman, the former U.S. and British amateur champion who turned pro this year, had a 72.

Jack Nicklaus, the defending champion and 11-5 favorite, was a late starter.

Brewer said of his round: "It was quite a finish. I felt as though my Masters' putting was back in business."

The Texan went out in three over par 39 and then pulled his game together with a birdie 3 at the 10th hole where he hit a No. 3 wood and wedge to four feet and sank the putt. He carded an eagle at the 529-yard 16th. He hit two three-woods to 12 feet and sank the putt.

Final Two Birdies

He got a birdie at the 17th with a three-wood, a wedge to 15 feet and sank the putt. Then he finished with another birdie on the home green. He used a three-wood off the tee, sent a seven-iron to 15 feet and holed the putt.

Never once did I use my driver," Brewer said. "I used a three-wood off the tee and a through the round."

Sanders flubbed his way around the front nine in 49 shots, which included a bogey at the sixth and a double bogey at the fifth. But then the man with the fancy colored suits and the short backswing scored 80 Tuesday to oust dejected loser with birdies on 10, 11, 12 and 17. His par on the 10th. Nienhaus of Appleton one up in hole gave him a drive of 32. The semifinal round of the Beman said, "I don't think it's possible to play golf tournament as badly as this course again."

Beman had trouble in the rough at the fifth and went out in par. He got a birdie 2 at the short 11th where he sank a 35-foot putt. He chalked up another birdie at the long 16th.

I had a chance of an eagle putt at the 12th. I was about 15 feet away in two, but missed the putt.

By MURRAY CHASS
ANAHEIM (AP) — Tony Perez started his California trip as a king and climaxed it by keeping the National League on the throne in All-Star competition.

Perez, the Cincinnati Red who replaced starter Rich Allen at third base in the 10th inning, ended the longest All-Star game ever played when he hit an 0-1 pitch from Kansas City's Jim Hunter into the left field bleachers in the 15th inning.

That gave the National League a 2-1 decision Tuesday and a record five straight victories over the American League. Trailing 12-4 in the All-Star

All-Star Contest
Slated Thursday in Wisconsin Rapids

The Appleton Foxes, Tuesday night, encountered their first postponement of the second half of the Midwest League season.

Wet grounds at Dubuque forced the postponement of the scheduled series opener between the Foxes and the Packers. They are due to play a double-header tonight.

Quincy stretched its lead to 1 1/2 games by scoring an 8-4 win over Decatur while runnerup Waterloo was bowing, 9-8, to Clinton. The Pilots came up with a 7-run eighth inning to erase a 7-2 deficit.

After tonight's games, the league's top players will head for Wisconsin Rapids and Thursday night's ML all-star game. First-round champion Wisconsin Rapids will face the all-star team, managed by the Foxes' Alex Cosmidis.

The all-star game is scheduled to start at 8 p.m. at Witter Field. A preliminary program, at 7 p.m., will feature the appearances of each club's candidate in the league queen contest.

The Foxes' players in the game will be outfielders Carlos May and Jose Ortiz, pitcher Al Fitzmorris and infielder Roy Rademaker. A busload of Foxes will leave Goodland Field at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday.

ANAHEIM (AP) — Magical Allen had won the vote for starting and had hit a homer in the second inning.

transformations occur in Anaheim Stadium as well as in adjacent Disneyland.

Tony Perez provided it as he turned from bench warmer to hero in baseball's 1967 All-Star game Tuesday.

The Cincinnati third baseman didn't see action in the first nine innings as Philadelphia's Richie Allen had won the vote for starting and had hit a homer in the second inning.

"I thought after it got into extra innings, I might get a chance to play," said Perez who was on the All-Star squad for the first time.

First Packers Meet Tonight

Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Temporarily without the services of the celebrated Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski, expected to figure prominently in the pursuit of an unprecedented third straight championship, the world champion Packers assembled at their St. Norbert College training camp tonight to launch "Project '67."

All, that is, except the offensive and defensive linemen, who are not scheduled to report until Saturday night. Some of these, however, also may be among tonight's arrivals at Sensenbrenner Hall on the picturesque West DePere campus.

Two-day drills, expected to continue until July 27 intrasquad game, will be inaugurated at 9 a.m. Thursday. Afternoon sessions start at 3 p.m.

Missing Tonight

Anderson and Grabowski, who are missing from tonight's gathering, which will begin with a dinner in the college cafeteria and be followed by physical examinations.

Donny, heir apparent to the departed Paul Hornung, currently is completing a stint at Camp Riley, Minn., and is due to report July 31, while Grabowski, whose '67 role is likely to be substantially larger than originally estimated as the result of Jim Taylor's transfer to New Orleans, is toiling at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo., and not expected here until July 24.

Fleet flanker Bob Long, shelved most of last season

because of a knee injury and subsequent surgery, also is presently stationed at Fort Leonard Wood and presumably will report with Grabowski.

"I hope to get something but there are a lot of people in the running. I haven't got anything yet."

"I'm going after it, that's all. It's just like trying out for the team as a rookie."

Brown is vacationing on Kauai Island.

He declined to discuss in detail what kind of a television program he is shooting for but said there was a possibility he might have his own drama show.

"I will report to training camp and will play for the Eagles this year."

Not Effective

Brown said that if the television and motion picture plans work out, the contract would not be effective until "next January."

10-Year-Old Barred From Participating in Ladies PGA Tourneys

Beverly Klass' Father Will Seek Order From Court

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — The battle over a 10-year-old girl's eligibility to play in the Ladies Professional Golf Association championship moved to the courts today as her father blamed "jealousy" for the controversy.

"The only reason I can see that they (the other players) won't accept her entering is that they're jealous of her," Jack Klass said after his daughter Beverly, was barred Tuesday. "They don't like to be beat by a 10-year-old girl."

All of the lady pros questioned on this subject declined comment.

Klass and his attorneys indicated they would seek a restraining order to halt the tournament from the state Superior Court sitting at nearby Worcester.

Came to Climax
The week - long controversy came to a climax Tuesday as registration was completed for the 72-hole tourney scheduled to begin Thursday at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

At an emergency meeting, the tour players voted to stick with their newly enacted rule limiting professional entrants to those 18 and over.

Reports indicated that only two of the players favored allowing Beverly to compete, with two others abstaining. It was not determined how many of the 52 players on hand for the tournament attended.

Despite the vote, Beverly showed up at the club to register. Jerry Schneider collected three hits, accompanied by her father, her mother, and two non-golfing sisters, Sherri, 12, and Valerie, 7.

"There's a new regulation. We can't accept your daughter's entry," they were told by Leonard Wirtz, the LPGA tournament director.

Klass, a Woodland Hills, Calif., contractor, then telephoned his lawyers and set the legal machinery in motion, as he had threatened.

Meanwhile the young prodigy, chewing bubble gum constantly, spoke with assembled newsmen. "I love to play golf," she said, but in answer to a question she said it wouldn't upset her if it turned out she couldn't compete in the tourney.

Her mother broke in to contradict the youngster, claiming it "would break her heart."

Beverly has played in regular four tournaments at Dallas, St. Louis and Baltimore, averaging, respectively, 91, 86, and 90 strokes per 18-hole round.

She won $31 at Dallas, and at Baltimore she missed by inches a hole-in-one that would have won a new car and $10,000.

The Baltimore appearance in the $15,000 Lady Carling Open marked the start of the controversy. Wirtz said allowing her to play might violate child labor statutes, but relented when state authorities said there would be no violation. The association then enacted the new age limit.

Police '9' Posts Pair of Shutouts In Little League

Curtis Anderson fired a 1-hitter and Jim Vandenberg hurled a 3-hitter to lead Police Department to 3-0 and 9-0 wins over Post-Crescent and South Side, respectively, in the McKinley Division of the Appleton Little League.

Anderson struck out 12 batters, and Kerry Frank and Jerry Schneider collected three hits apiece for the winners.

Vandenberg fanned four. In the Linwood Park Division, Baur Truck routed VFW, 15-7. Jim Finical, Steve Foate, Fred Vermeern each slapped a pair of hits to lead Baur's 9-hit attack. Jim Byrne and Timmins rapped two hits each for the losers.

Marion Scores 13-9 Legion Win Over W-F

16 Errors Charged To Losers; Winners Tie for Second

WEYAUWEGA — Marion received the aid of 16 errors to record a 13-9 victory over Weyauwega-Fremont in a Fox Valley Legion League contest here Tuesday.

With the victory, Marion jumped into a tie for second with Waupaca, with an 8-2 mark, one game behind front-running Appleton in the Central Division. W-F is now 2-8.

John Braun went the distance for the winners, although giving up 13 hits and walking five. He struck out five.

Chuck Koehler and Tom Rohde shared duties for W-F.

Tom Schider and Ron Simdars paced the winners' 11-hit attack with three safeties apiece. Zimdars also had three RBI. Dan Brandenburg collected a pair of hits, and Bruce West doubled for Marion.

Larry Schmies rapped out three hits, including a double for W-F. Eugene and Jack Montgomery, Koehler and Dan Oehke had a pair of hits each.

him to third base in the bottom of the 10th and he struck out in the 12th. Then in the 15th, with the count 0-1, Tony crashed a Jim Hunter pitch over the left field fence boosting the Nationals to a 2-1 victory.

"When I hit it, I knew it was out," said Perez who has hit 17 homers for the Reds this year.

He was especially happy because his wife, Pitula, and their 14-month-old son, Victor, were in the stands. The night before he was surprised when he and his family were assigned the $58-a-night presidential suite at a nearby hotel.

"Felt Like a King"
"I don't know what happened," he said. "But when we got to the hotel, they have no more rooms left so they give me the presidential suite."

"I felt like a king."

The feeling was stronger after the game where he was voted the outstanding player on the strength of his homer.

Alston said he substituted Perez because "it was getting late, and I wanted to get him in. There's not too much difference between those two fellows so I got him in there."

The 25-year-old native of Cuba, who now calls Puerto Rico his home, explained, "When I got into the game, I felt great. But when I came to bat the first time, I was a little tense and nervous. But the second time I think I know what kind of pitcher he is and I thought maybe I could hit him, so I was more relaxed."

"He threw me a curve on the first pitch, but I was looking for a fast ball because he threw me two fast balls the first time when he struck me out. The second pitch was a fast ball."

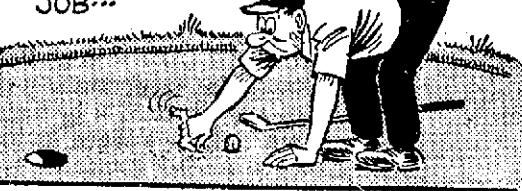

Perez never before had batted against Hunter who pitches for the Kansas City A's.

Don't Write Off Cubs Just Yet, Santo Warns

21 Straight Days Of Games Caused Team to Get Tired

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Take it from Ron Santo, don't write off the Chicago Cubs just because they've lost seven straight games after their amazing climb to the top of the National League.

"We've gone too far to let up now," said the hard-hitting Cub third baseman and team captain.

Santo, taking advantage of a three-day break because of Tuesday's All-Star game at Anaheim, Calif., explained: "We played 21 days without a day off. Everybody was tired. It was not only physical but mental. There was a tremendous amount of pressure."

Making Mistakes
"A lot of things happened at Stach and Bernie Heselson. We began making mistakes. We went on the road and had a lot of night games, which Spanagel and John Gall. Fourth, we had an adjustment because at 300, were Cy Rachie, Bob Spooner, George Peotter and I John Rosebush."

"We went to Houston and I series in the Dome. Houston is best gross score reported. Rudy over Techlins. 78s and Brown also posted a 79.

"But the club is not de-pressed. And Leo Durocher (team manager) has been great about the situation. Actually, he's a tougher winner than a loser. When a team is losing he goes along with it."

Santo, here to visit his mother, figures the three-day rest will go a long way in helping the Cubs on the current rugged road enough, but I think we need another stopper like Ferguson Jenkins."

The captain, looking thoughtful for a moment, then smiled. "We lost seven games, but we're not hurt. We're still in second place, only 3½ games behind St. Louis."

"We've got a lot of young players. We can win it, if they hold up under pressure. We've gone too far to let up now."

Frazier and Chuvalo Drill at Plush Resorts

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (AP) — Heavyweight contenders Joe Frazier and George Chuvalo meet in New York's Madison Square Garden next Wednesday night in a 12-rounder that figures to be a rough-and-tough, drag 'em out battle.

You would think that the two heavyweights would be training at austere camps where they could concentrate solely on the big, pivotal fight ahead.

Instead they are working out at two of the plushest resorts in the Catskill Mountains. Chuvalo, the 29-year-old Canadian champion, is working out here at the Grossinger Country Club while Frazier is training nearby at the Concord Hotel.

Ignore Festivities
The fighters, however, are going through their paces as if they were working out on barges. They are ignoring the bright, night social festivities.

"That's not for me," said Frazier Tuesday. "This is a fine place for me to work. The facilities are tops. But when the sun goes down, that's it for me. I'm here to get ready for a big fight and that's all the counts."

The 23-year-old slugger, who has posted 14 knockouts in an unbeaten string of 16, has been ferocious in his workouts. Frazier, a 6-foot, 203-pounder has been flattening sparmates with his short, powerful left hooks.

He appears ready to go today. Chuvalo, an iron-jawed veteran who claims he never has been floored, has been drilling as if he had a marathon run coming up. He has been boxing 12 rounds in the same old way although his new trainer, Freddie Brown, has been attempting to change his style.

Middle of Workout
Brown wants Chuvalo to jab and box. The Canadian champion stopped in the middle of a workout the other day to tell with the Cubs.

"Let me do it my way," Chuvalo's way is to keep moving in, take punches and to fire away at the body.

He might have the answer, at that, to beat Frazier, the 11-5 favorite.

Frazier, ranked second by the World Boxing Association, never has gone more than 10 rounds. His chin is suspect. Argentina's Oscar Bonavena dropped him twice in the second round, and the muscular Argentine signals his punches. Frazier rallied, however, to win the 10-rounder last September.

Seem Like Year
"We're going 12, and that may seem like a year to Frazier before George gets through with him," said Irving Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager. "Remember Cassius Clay couldn't hurt George in 15 rounds. So why should he worry about Frazier?"

Ungerman and Chuvalo both are angry at the World Boxing Association.

The 29-year-old Canadian has won 12 straight fights by knocking out since he dropped a disputed 10-round decision to Bonavena, 13 months ago.

"The WBA rated George fifth two months ago," said Ungerman. "So George keeps on winning by knockouts and what happens? In their last ratings they dropped George to 10th. How do they figure that?"

"They've got Frazier second. It will be interesting to see what they do after George whips him next Wednesday."

Larsen Returned After 11-Day Stay

CHICAGO (AP) — Relief pitcher Don Larsen, after a brief 11-day stay, was returned by the Chicago Cubs to Dallas-Fort Worth of the Texas League on an outright release basis Tuesday.

Larsen, who hurled a perfect no-bitter for the New York Yankees in the 1956 World Series, was acquired by the Cubs on June 30.

He appeared in three games with the Cubs.

mente, on the other hand, belied his stature as one of baseball's best hitters by striking out a record four times.

"This was possibly over-all the best pitching in any All-Star game I've seen," commented Alston, who picked up his sixth victory against two defeats as an All-Star manager.

"Some said the twilight made the pitches hard to see, but you have to credit the pitching. It's still the name of the game. This type doesn't strike out with that consistency. Maybe it was a little hard to see, but I wouldn't have believed it if I hadn't seen it."

Willie Mays, who was called out on strikes when he entered the game as a pinch hitter in the sixth, agreed with Alston. "It was the pitching, not the light conditions," said the San Francisco star who didn't start in the game for the first time since 1956.

Strikes Out
Perez himself struck out in his first appearance against Hunter in the 12th inning. Hunter was still around in the 15th when the Reds' right-handed slugger came up again and hit his game-winning homer.

"He threw a curve the first pitch," Perez said, "but I was looking for a fast ball because he threw me two fast balls when he struck me out. The second pitch was a fast ball and I hit it good. I knew it was a homer."

All that was left then was for rookie Tom Seaver of the New York Mets to retire the Americans in their half of the 15th. Seaver relieved Don Drysdale, who worked two innings before leaving for a pinch hitter and received credit for the victory.

Practically overlooked by the time the contest ended were the pitching performances of Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox and National League starter Juan Marchal of San Francisco.

Peters worked three perfect innings for the Americans while Marchal allowed only a pinch

The Real Significance of the Kellett Bill

The bitter bureaucratic in-fighting of the last few weeks over what was described as control of the future Department of Conservation and Natural Resources has tended to obscure the far-reaching significance of the Kellett reorganization bill which has now cleared the Legislature in final form for the signature of Gov. Warren Knowles.

The bill, dating from a directive of the 1965 Legislature, from long and praise-worthy work of a citizen commission, and from the more pragmatic work of both houses of the Legislature, will be among the top accomplishments of this decade in the Capitol. It will provide Wisconsin with a more efficient government and a government more responsive to the people and to the chief executive chosen by the people. Estimates of savings in annual administrative costs run upward from $3 million yearly.

For most citizens, it will be difficult to understand what all the quarreling was about over the future board to govern conservation and natural resources. The original bill called for an interim board of two members each from the Conservation Commission and the Resource Development Board and three public members appointed without past affiliation to work out details of the merger to be placed under the direction of a new board July 1, 1968.

In its final form, the bill provides for a board of four members from the Conservation Commission and three from the Resource Development Board and the bill retains the 1968 merger date. In the exaggerated ways of politics, the final argument was described as a test between fishermen and those who pollute rivers. This was hardly the case. Perhaps the main result of the form of the final bill will be to give the Conservation Department the strongest voice in setting up the administrative structure for the combined department. If so, the final bill probably represents the majority concern of Wisconsin citizens, not only those who happen to be fishermen and hunters. But in time, appointments to the new governing board will be made from the viewpoint of the original Kellett bill, that supervision of conservation, parks, and anti-pollution efforts was a logical combination.

The Kellett bill will reorganize a state administrative structure of over 80 departments into a structure of supervision by four elected constitutional officers, 14 operating departments, and 12 agencies headed by citizen boards. The latter will include, in addition to the natural resources merger, a combination of the Board of Health and the Department of Public Welfare and the existing Coordinating Committee for Higher Education.

Functions combined in operating departments include state administration, state licensing, transportation, and state revenues.

Reorganization of state government is a difficult task subject to the pressures of opposition from existing bureaucracy and special interest groups which have working relations with the status quo. With its patient explanations, the Kellett Committee was able to convince Wisconsin of the need. Gov. Knowles and the Legislature have met one of the key responsibilities of this session.

and that an income tax increase is needed as a safeguard. In what more congressmen might be forced to agree with, William Mc Chesney Martin Jr., chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, has said a tax increase is needed to "whittle down the prospective deficit for the coming fiscal year to one of manageable proportions."

In a fact which received little notice when the House agreed to the administration request for a debt limit increase of $22 billion with an added $7 billion as a temporary limit, the Treasury Department said $2.2 billion would be needed if the income surtax does not become effective until next January instead of July 1 as contemplated in the budget. Its estimate was that the budget deficit would be $11 billion and that $3 billion more should be provided for possible increases in the estimates of the Vietnam war.

The only questions now seem to be when the President will ask for the tax increase and how it will be phrased. The record would demand an explanation that Vietnam is costing more than anticipated and that the deficit is higher than reported last January. But the explanation more likely will be that the economy needs to be slowed down a bit as an anti-inflation measure.

The tax increase would add to the split in the nation's opinion over the necessity of being in Vietnam. While this will be the major reason for the increased deficit and the need for more revenue, the administration appears ready to try to sell the tax increase as something needed to better manage a booming economy.

created confusion and disagreement. . . . A fundamental review of the appropriate role of the Office of Education in the enforcement of constitutional and statutory law is needed."

These points of view are considerably different from attitudes expressed officially by the NEA in the past. The NEA firmly backed the National Defense Education Act of 1958, largely enacted because of the Russian sputnik success and the Elementary and Secondary Education Acts of 1965. But it seems that the support came because officials believed that more general aid was politically impossible.

The Legislative Commission of the NEA now proposes a multi-million dollar tax sharing program. The federal government would return to the states for the operating expenses of the public schools a portion of personal income taxes. This of course has been proposed in the past primarily by Republican congressmen. Such general funding, said the commission, "may be politically beyond the possible in the present circumstances. But it should be the main aim to move in that direction now."

More and more it may not be politically impossible and the NEA support, a considerable reversal of earlier positions, may help give tax sharing programs a mighty boost.

Asserts Assembly Did Not Hurt Traffic Safety Plan by Delay

Editor, Post-Crescent.

In fairness to the public and to your position on the Governor's Traffic Safety Bill, I think you should be aware of the effective dates of the original bill and the bill engrossed by the Senate as 82S.

Only one item had a 1967 effective date. This was the appointment of head of the added new department created in the governor's office on traffic safety. All the rest of the principal features of the two bills had effective dates in 1968. Implied consent had a six months after passage effective date so that even if the Assembly had passed 82S on the same day it received the bill from the Senate, the implied consent feature would not have taken effect until late in the fall of 1967.

The effective dates are the key to the controversy over the alleged delay in passing of the governor's bill. Obviously you now can see that not one thing was harmed by the Assembly taking a good hard look at the bill.

Furthermore the press has overlooked that the Assembly version of 82S passed last week had some wonderful additions to the original bill. These include financial assistance to the county traffic departments and a state training program to all new local police officers and to those who had less than two years experience. What we did was place the major features of the governor's police training bill into the highway traffic safety bill. In my opinion and the opinion of many local law officers, this training program will bear more fruit than all the other provisions put together.

Another worthwhile correction was to put the driver retesting program on the basis of accident experience or arrest experience rather than solely on age as in the other bills.

There has been much emotion about the beer drinking age and I personally feel that the Assembly's position on the 19 year old uniform age was much more realistic than the 21 year old proposal in 82S with a "grandfather" clause that prolonged the present situation for another 3 years.

I am sure the majority of the Assembly join with me in urging every one connected with traffic safety to put aside their personal prejudices and wild emotions so that they can help us come up with a constructive, effective piece of legislation.

In my experience to date from the dozens of letters I have received pro and con on the subject, only one person had taken the trouble to read the actual provisions of the various bills in question.

Anyone that is interested can write to Document Room, State Legislature, Madison, Wisconsin for the original 82S, 82S as engrossed by the Senate and 82S as engrossed by the Assembly. As long as the supply lasts, the state will furnish them with copies. Gerald K. Anderson, Waupaca County Assemblyman

Letter Writer Says Answer To Her Ideas Has Merit

Editor, Post-Crescent,

Mr. Hockammer:

In reading your reply to my letter in the People's Forum I find much truth in what you say. But if you will note I did not say that anyone that advocates peace is a communist.

I certainly am for peace and certainly do not say that anyone who advocates it is wrong. But you didn't give any alternative to the war either.

Don't you believe that if the comics are not stopped they will come here next? Your ideas that the leaders of the countries should argue the difficulties out among themselves is very good. In fact, my husband says the same thing.

Perhaps I should say here that many of my facts and opinions come from him. He just doesn't get as worked up as I do.

I do not have anyone in Vietnam. But I did have a brother and a brother-in-law in World War II and many brothers-in-law and nephews in the Korean conflict, also our son served four years in the Navy and now works at Sandia Air Force Base in Albuquerque.

I am worried that this Vietnam conflict will drag on until our grandchildren are eligible. I realized in later reflection that I was pretty radical in saying that all the anti-war demonstrators were comics. In fact, I was surprised that they published it. And I expected more calls and replies than I received. There are always two sides to every argument.

I still think the students could get their point across in some less violent and destructive way. They should know by now the rioting isn't helping any.

I will get down off my soapbox for now.

Wisconsin Report

Beer Not Intoxicating Beverage Under Legal Definition in State

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — One of the several reasons why the beer drinking age issue has become so blurred in the public consciousness, and even in the debate on the floor of the Legislature, is the pretense that beer is not intoxicating, a fiction that has had the dignity of statutory endorsement in Wisconsin for three and one half decades.

Wyngaard

The enactment of the prohibition laws and their later repeal happened so long ago that probably a majority of Wisconsin residents have no direct recollection of those events.

An admirable review of the whole history of beer regulation in Wisconsin, the elements of the present controversy, and the problem of lack of uniformity has been published by the Wisconsin Legislative Reference Bureau and is worthy of wide circulation. The report of Mrs. Selma Parker of the staff is prepared with fine detachment and is timed aptly.

It is worthy of recollection that, before the absolute liquor prohibition laws of the state and the nation were enacted nearly half a century ago, the law and public policy on the question of beer were consistent. Beer was classified as an intoxicant, along with wine and whiskey, and was forbidden to minors; that is, any person who had not reached the age of 21.

CONSISTENT REGULATIONS

As far as Mrs. Parker's useful study shows, there was no demand that beer be classified separately, on the assumption that as a non-intoxicant it should have a preferred status. As the political powers of Wisconsin then knew, a person can reach the stage of drunkenness on beer, and many do so as ordinary observation today can verify.

But Wisconsin was one of the most eager of the states to get rid of the prohibition amendment. The repeal resolution in the Congress that was quickly approved there and ratified by the states was presented by Sen. John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, one of the leading politicians of his time who had served successfully as governor before he was elected to the Congress. Wisconsin was the second state in the country to ratify the amendment, losing first place rating in history by only fifteen days, to Michigan.

In a vote on delegates to a state ratification convention the "wets" prevailed by a margin of nearly five to one which is one of the most spectacular examples of popular will in the history of major causes in this state.

Gov. Schmiedeman, whose unexpected election as a Democrat in the previous year was probably related to the "wet" issue as well as the coal-tail pull of Franklin Roosevelt, chose not to wait for the next regular legislative session to consider liquor legislation. He called a special session which rushed through some measures, including one that authorized persons 18 years and over to buy beer where liquor was not sold and exempting beer from the definition of intoxicating liquors.

It was classified as a "fermented malt beverage," and so it has remained. The idea of local option regulations embracing beer bars for minors 18 years and over has survived also, in a system that most residents of Wisconsin may not know is an unusual one among the states of the country.

RULES OF OTHER STATES

It is probably relevant to the current legislative controversy that Wisconsin is only one of seven states out of the 50 in the union that has maintained a lower standard than the 21 year rule as a drinking age. The others include Louisiana and New York, which also permit 18 year olds to buy hard liquor, and Alaska and Idaho which have a minimum beer age of 20. Thus Wisconsin stands only with Mississippi and North and South Carolina in its regulatory system, although seven of the 21-year states permit minors to drink the so-called 3.2 per cent beer, when their laws define as non-intoxicating.

The reference bureau report does not labor the point, but it suggests also the interesting fact that the existing Wisconsin regulatory structure stands apart from those in all of its immediately adjacent states, which have uniform 21 year age rules.

Strictly Personal

Everyone for Freedom Of His Own Definition

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My old friend, J. Hawley Smoot, has been bleating about "freedom" for more than 30 years. Ever since the early days of the New Deal, he has been calling for "less government interference."

Harris

What J. Hawley Smoot means is less interference with him. He's quite content to see much more government interference with other people. In fact, he writes long and heated letters to his congressional men about it.

He wants tougher laws against men who oppose the draft. He thinks the government should send them to jail. He wants a government crackdown on pugnacious labor leaders. He would like to have the cops round up all the beatniks and put them away somewhere.

J. Hawley Smoot thinks that war dissenters ought to be muzzled. School dropouts ought to be forced to go to work. Teachers who wear beads and quote "unlabeled" literature in classrooms ought to be dismissed. Theater owners who show dirty movies ought to be shut down.

He is for stronger police laws, more military action, compulsory labor arbitration, more vigorous censorship, and the abolition of all obnoxious picketing. If possible, he would like to have the FCC ban all radio stations from playing rock-and-roll music.

What kind of "freedom" does J. Hawley Smoot really believe in? The freedom to be J. Hawley Smoot, to look like him, dress like him, think like him, believe like him, and get rich like him.

"Hands off" is his motto when the government proposes to restrict in any way his freedom to run a business, manage a property, pay taxes, or engage in any sort of fiscal frolics.

"Hands on" is his motto when he looks with disgust at the antics of criminals, labor leaders, agitators (anybody who wants to change the status quo is by definition an "agitator"), beatniks, dropouts, and all people who want different freedoms than J. Hawley Smoot wants.

It has never occurred to him that maybe the reason no one has paid much attention to his bleats for "freedom" over the last 30 years is that it is perfectly obvious even to a moron that he wants only his kind of freedom.

Not once in all that time has he joined a committee, or signed a petition, that was working for freedom for somebody else — for somebody less affluent, less advantaged, less able to cope with the immensity and complexity of the power structure.

If he had, perhaps we could believe him more. Anybody can be for his own kind of freedom; but unless we respect it for those we dislike or disagree with, nobody else will follow us or have faith in us.

Body Appeals to Ryun: 'Run for Your Country'

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Lee executive director, said Strong appeals by U.S. Olympic committee President Douglas F. Committee officials have gone Roby of Detroit, contacted both out to Jim Ryun to reconsider Ryun and his coach Monday, and join the Pan-American and offered to fly Ryun to Minneapolis both the trials here this Sunday morning for the weekend and the competition at 1,500 meter race and return him to Winnipeg by air immediately.

Art Lentz, Olympic Committee, said "We would do the same thing at Winnipeg for the race there Aug. 4," Lentz said, "assuming he made the team, which he almost certainly would." The Winnipeg games run from July 24 through Aug. 5.

Roby appealed to the importance of Ryun representing his country at Winnipeg, Lentz said. "All we are asking is 48 hours of his life to run for his country."

Best Amateur in World
Lentz said the concession for one-day appearance never has been granted, and were made so that Ryun would not have to absent himself longer from his summer-time newspaper job in Topeka, Kan., and because he symbolizes the best in U.S. track and field.

Ryun is the best amateur athlete in the world, Lentz said. "Canada is much concerned about his decision. So are we. Other countries in this hemisphere are insulted when we don't send our best personnel. They can't understand it."

Lentz also expressed concern over other U.S. track stars including hurdler Richmond Flowers, distance runner Gerry Lindgren, 400 meter ace Jack Kemp and sprinters Tommie Smith and Charlie Greene, who are passing up the Pan-American Games.

"Some have very good excuses, some don't," Lentz said. "No, I wasn't nervous," said Seaver, who looks younger than his 22 years. "I was quite confident. I just thought to keep the ball down and avoid the home run."

"It all happened pretty fast. It's a tremendous feeling."

Alston complimented the recent Southern California graduate's poise. "That was quite a spot to send a young man in," said the manager. "But he came through all right. He's quite a competitor."

For the American League pitchers, the strikeout tabula-race victory over Fox Traction was: Dean Chance one, Jim for Tuesday. McGlothlin four, Gary Peters three, Al Downing two and loser with an 8-hit assault on loser Mike Hunter, the victim of Per-Mike Parker, as Gene Jenkins went 3-for-4.

Slip and Dar's Meets Neenah Team Friday Night

MENASHA — Defending champion Jitter's & John's, Menasha, and Park Avenue Bar, Oshkosh, were quarter-reached the doubles finals and final victors in the Menasha Athletic Association's football tournament Tuesday night. Jitter's built up an 8-0 lead under and 14-and-under at Mid- and turned back Piggly Wiggly downtown. O. of Oshkosh, 8-5, Glenn Nau was the winning pitcher and Fred of Glencoe, Ill., lost in the regular shaft.

Armless Ann Finds Golf Not Too Tough

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — After six months of playing golf, Ann Morissey, 14, can drive a ball almost 100 yards. Her best score is 71 for nine holes. Ann was born without arms.

Watching her dad, Al Morissey, hack his way around the course one day, Ann remarked that the game didn't look too tough.

Ann's only club, a wood obtained by club pro Al Patterson from a manufacturer, is 56 inches long — 13 inches longer than the regular shaft.

Kaukauna '9' Loses, 6-1, to Sturgeon Bay

STURGEON BAY — Right-hander John Burns scattered seven hits and struck out 11 as Sturgeon Bay whipped Kaukauna, 6-1, Tuesday in a Northern Division game in the Fox Valley Legion League.

The Bay team is now 8-1, having won eight straight, while Kaukauna evened its record at 4-4.

Burns, 6-0 for the season, lost his bid for a shutout in the seventh inning when singles by Bruce Specht and Jim Vandenberg plated Kaukauna's only run. Specht and Vandenberg led the Kaukauna attack with two hits each.

Sturgeon Bay scored twice in the second inning off loser Dave La Borde on a hit-batsman, Chuck Troll's double, an infield out and a wild pitch. The winners added a run in the sixth and chased La Borde with a 2-run seventh. Jim Vandenberg finished up for Kaukauna.

Alston Uses All but One Member Of NL's 25-Man All-Star Squad

ANAHEIM (AP) — Walter Alston of Los Angeles used all of his 25-man National League squad in the All-Star Game with the exception of pitcher Claude Osteen who worked Sunday.

Hank Bauer of Baltimore had five men left over on his American League squad, including the three pitchers who worked Sunday and were not expected to see action. They were Jim Lonborg of Boston, Joe Horlen of Chicago and Steve Hargan of Cleveland.

The others who didn't see action were catchers Paul Casanova of Washington and Andy Elchebarren of Baltimore. Starter Bill Freehan of Detroit was one of 10 players who played in the entire game.

In the early days of the All-Star series they didn't have rules about pitchers working only three innings, so Lefty Gomez of the New York Yankees went six innings in 1935.

Under the current rules no pitcher can go more than three unless the game goes into extra innings. The last time anybody worked as many as five innings in recent years before Tuesday's long stint by Kansas City's Jim Hunter was in the 14th inning game in 1950. Larry Jansen, then of the New York Giants, worked five frames.

There is one exception. A relief pitcher can finish an inning and then go three on his own. That was how Johnny Antonelli of the Giants worked four in 1936 and Lew Burdette of the Milwaukee Braves in 1957. In 1957, Al Downing 2, Jim Hunter 4.

When Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh struck out four times, he broke a record held by eight players.

Among the eight men who had struck out three times in an All-Star Game were Lou Gehrig, Mickey Mantle, Bob Johnson, Stan Hack, Joe Gordon, Ken Keltner, Jim Hegan and John Roseboro.

The two new Hall of Famers formed a battery for the first-ball ceremonies before the game.

Red Ruffing, the old pitcher, was on the mound and Lloyd Waner, the former outfielder, was the catcher. When Lloyd Waner Poison of the famous Waner brothers, caught the ball.

Chisox Play Makeup Tilt With Indians

CHICAGO (AP) — With the All-Star game having been concluded, the Chicago White Sox will try to gain ground on their two-game American lead tonight.

While most teams are enjoying a three-day layoff because of the All-Star game, the Sox will be in action at Cleveland.

Tommy John (8-5) will go for Chicago against Sam McDowell (5-7).

After the makeup at Cleveland, the Sox will return home to open a four-game series against the California Angels.

The Chicago Cubs, meanwhile, losers of their last seven games will go to Los Angeles for a three-game series beginning Thursday and then advance to San Francisco for the weekend.

Steals 7 Bases In KP-Legion's 9-5 Triumph

The Knights of Pythias-Legion team scored four runs in the eighth inning to down Fox Valley Cab, 9-5, in an Appleton, Babe Ruth League contest.

Tuesday John Hurley went all can League starting pitcher. It seems Dean did not endear himself to the folks of Disneyland in 1966 season before he was traded to Minnesota.

Dave Nemeth put on a 1-man show for the winners. He went 2-for-2 at the plate, walked twice, scored four times and stole seven bases. Greg Choudoir led FVC with a pair of hits in four trips, including a double.

Hurley struck out 11 batters host to a newly-organized Kim-berly team at Goodland Field at 6 p.m. today.

Adderly, Jeter Examples for Detroit's Rookie Lem Barney

DETROIT (AP) — Herb Adderly of the Green Bay Packers may be helping out the Detroit Lions.

Adderly, former Michigan State star, is serving an example for the Lions' rookie cornerback Lem Barney.

Barney, an entry from Jackson (Miss.) State bidding for a job with Detroit, chose Adderly as one man he'd like to emulate.

Another Barney admires is the Packers' Bobby Jeter, also a cornerback.

"They're the greatest and I've tried to pattern myself after them," Barney said.

Barney, a Southwestern Conference All-Star three years in split, Cleone Rohloff the 6-7 and a row, was Detroit's second Betty Hunter the 3-9-10.

Mitch Ryder, Pop Singer with blues sound out of Detroit, shows some of the style that has him labeled as the most exciting performer in the field since James Brown. Ryder is appearing with his aggregation Sunday at Neenah.

Mitch Ryder Termed an 'Exciting Performer'

Former Obscure Detroit Band Leader Not Satisfied With Being Rock Group Leader

BY JINGO

In little more than a year Mitch Ryder has gone from an obscure Detroit area rock band leader to a nationally famous pop musician considered to be one of the most exciting performers since James Brown first broke it up.

Mitch will appear Sunday — at 2:15 and 8:15 p.m. — at Neenah High School's gym in one of those concerts every pop fan should be required to attend.

Jingo

Ryder — born William Levis Jr. about 22½ years ago — is one of the pioneers of white, successful singing blues-oriented music. He comes from the Detroit area, which has its share of "soul" music artists at Motown.

Mitch claims his first big inspiration was Little Richard's "Keep a Knockin'" recorded when Ryder was 12 years old. The impression, he says, was immediate and overwhelming and introduced him to the world of beat and rock music. He toyed with the style and as he grew older he had contact with many of the musicians later associated with the Motown sound. Mitch himself sang lead with several colored groups, including the Peps in 1963. A few people "snickered," Mitch said. "They don't any more."

Formed Group

After high school graduation Mitch formed his own group and called it Billy Lee and the Riverias. They did half R&B and half pop. They fared well enough for Detroit deejay Dave Prince to put them in contact with Bob Crewe, the independent record producer responsible for the Four Seasons, among others.

The group left for New York in 1965 to record for Crewe's New Voice label and changed

Great Cast, Good Show On 'Chrysler'

BY TV SCOUT

8-9 Channels 4-5 — "A Time To Love" on Bob Hope Presents the Chrysler Theater, has the spark of an interesting drama. With an excellent cast, Sidney Michaels has turned a Henry James novel ("Washington Square") into a slick melodrama. Maximilian Schell makes an attractive wooer of Claire Bloom's million dollars Nina Foch stands out as a grasping aunt, who has dreamy love thoughts and Ralph Bellamy is memorable as Miss Bloom's niggardly psychiatrist father (C-R).

6:30-8 Channel 5 — Patty Duke pops up as a saloon waitress on the lam from a dreary family and a dreary boyfriend on The Virginian. It's an interesting change of pace for the young star and she makes the most of it. There isn't however, too much excitement in this flirty, homespun tale whose main feature is the good acting of Miss Duke, Edward Binns and Paul Carr (C-R).

8-10 Channels 11-6-9 — The Wednesday Night Movie has presented more believable portrayals than "Wild in the Country," which casts Elvis Presley as a diamond in the raw. He is a rebellious youth with an affinity for breaking the rules. But deep down inside lies the sensitive soul of a writer. Believe it or not. Overall it is a low-grade display of emotional conflicts, held haphazardly together by the talents of John Ireland, Hope Lange and Tuesday Weld (C-R).

8:30-9 (Channels 2-7-12) — If you have ever served time in the Army or the Marines you will enjoy Gomer Pyle—USMC. Jim Nabors is at his funniest telling young recruits about the rigors of basic training and getting mixed up with a "bank robber." Adding to the fun, in a brief scene is Maxine Semon as a hefty woman Marine (C-R).

9-10 Channels 2-7-12 — Too bad they didn't give comedians Stiller and Meara more time on The Steve Allen Comedy Hour in the Closet and I'm Feeling So. They are very good and deserving.

Performances will be held at 8:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Grand Theatre. The play is under the direction of Dr. Nancy Vunovich, assistant professor of speech. Koplitz's play is a barbed pole leading roles are played by the contemporary absurdist Brenda Baumhart, speech instructor at WSU-O, Fred Stein, which takes the themes of lack of brecher, university cashier, and of communication monism and Terence Feldman and Billie sexual depravity and quickly Dawn Wolf, WSU-O students.

ing of more than this guest spot which they share with Tim Conway and singer Lou Rawls. Regulars Allen, Jayne Meadows, Louis Nye and Ruth Buzzi are also on hand for another combination of the new and the old (C-R).

9-10 Channels 4-5 — If you haven't had your fill of post-war concentration camp sagas, you may be intrigued and disturbed by I Spy (C-R).

Retiring Greek Embassy

ATHENS (AP) — The new military regime is retiring the Greek ambassador to the United Nations, Alexios Liatris, and four other key ambassadors.

More ambassadors may lose their jobs soon, a reliable source said.

The regime gave no reason for retiring the ambassadors in its announcement of the move Monday, but it is known their loyalty has been in doubt since the April 21 coup.

Brandt Claims NATO Won't be Affected by Cutbacks in Military

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany will be able to keep up its commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization even if it cuts its army, Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said Monday.

But he stressed that so far the government has decided only to prune the defense budget, not to scale down the army. According to reliable estimates, however, the 1968 defense slash of $500 million will result in a reduction of 40,000-60,000 troops from the 461,000-man army.

Congolese Cannibals Eat Whites

After Mutiny by Mercenaries

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — A white Congolese cabinet minister to-day reported cannibalism of white settlers in the southeast Congo.

Interior Minister Etienne Tshiesekedi told newsmen at Moise Tshombe, capital of Burundi, that Congolese had eaten sever-

New Terrorism Hits Hong Kong

Government House
In British Colony

By FORREST EDWARDS

HONG KONG (AP) — A time bomb wrecked a rural government meeting house today in the British colony racked by two months of Communist Chinese violence.

In other areas, roving gangs of Communist-led Chinese burned buses, taxis and cars, smashed store fronts and fought police.

Police said the time bomb had been set to explode during a scheduled meeting of the rural advisory committee at Tai Po, an agricultural and fishing market town only six miles south of the Communist Chinese border.

The meeting had been postponed only a few hours earlier. There were no reports of death or injury in the blast, which tore apart the meeting room.

The explosion hit only a few hours after Colonial Secretary D.R. Holmes had told Hong Kong's legislative committee that the colony "may well be entering a new phase of terrorism."

A dozen buses and cars were splashed with gasoline and set alight in Kowloon, the Chinese city and tourist center across the harbor channel from Hong Kong.

Earlier police clamped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on the island, center of the business and financial district and seat of the colonial government.

With Communist pressure on the British colonial government mounting, the most severe water rationing since 1963 was by the mutiny, were in a hotel ordered to conserve the local supply should Peking refuse to resume deliveries of water from the mainland in the fall.

Patrol Streets
Armored police vans, filled with riot squads armed with carbine and shotguns, patrolled the streets of Wanchai, North Point, and the Western District — three explosive areas where hit-and-run terrorists have killed a policeman and two civilians, and three rioters have been killed since Sunday.

Harbor ferries, street cars and buses stopped running.

Two-thirds of the colony's public transport never started today. Hundreds of drivers, frightened by attacks against buses and street cars and by Red threats, did not show up for work.

Soviets Halt U. S. Tour by Entertainers

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officials called off a tour of the United States by 250 Russian dancers, singers and musicians because of tension over the Middle East and Vietnam, a source in the Ministry of Culture said today.

"If the international situation changes in a favorable way, then the group might go," the source said.

The Russian Festival of Music and Dance troupe originally had been scheduled to open its tour July 5 in New York under the auspices of impresario Sol Hurok. After the Arab-Israeli war, which caused an entire new Soviet-American dispute, the Russians postponed the tour.

In order to make arrangements for theaters and other facilities, Hurok set a new starting date of July 17 without any Soviet assurance that it would be met, the Cultural Ministry source said. Tuesday Hurok's New York office said the Soviet Embassy in Washington had informed it the tour was "postponed indefinitely."

"I am going to Bukavu where similar acts could take place, all the more since the local population is still furious against mercenaries who mutined there last week," he said.

He said the situation was fairly quiet in Lubumbashi, but the Congolese population feared mercenary attacks. Lubumbashi escaped the mutinous uprisings that raged last week in Bukavu, 650 miles to the north, and in Kisangani, the former Stanleyville.

The Belgian Foreign Ministry, which has a consul general in Lubumbashi, said in Brussels that no reports from its ambassador and consuls in the Congo even suggested that cannibalism had taken place in Lubumbashi or elsewhere in the Congo.

That does not mean such acts did not take place, a spokesman added.

Stalemate Claimed
A Cuban-American pilot who escaped from Kisangani said a stalemate seemed to prevail there with mutineers and loyal troops holding opposite banks of the Congo River.

The pilot for the Congo government's airline, Francisco Alvarez, landed his bullet-scarred DC3 at Kigali airstrip Monday night. He told Rwanda authorities he had escaped under heavy fire after being held for five days by white mercenaries and troops from Katanga Province who mutinied after Tshombe was kidnapped in the Spanish Balearic Islands and taken to Algeria.

Alvarez, his French copilot, Georges Lagarrigue, and three passengers, a Belgian, a Spaniard and a Congolese, were jailed on demand of the Congolese Embassy on charges of stealing the plane.

Alvarez told U.S. Embassy officials that about 150 Europeans, including 22 visiting newsmen trapped in Kisangani, were in a hotel under the protection of the mercenaries. He said the mercenaries and mutineers hold that part of Kisangani on the right bank of the Congo River, including the airport and radio station.

He said the Congolese national army was holding the left bank of the river, but at the time he left there seemed to be a stalemate or tacit truce.

Tigerton Youth Killed In Shawano Accident

Post-Crescent News Service

One youth was killed and three others hospitalized after a single-car crash southeast of Tigerton in Shawano County at 1:30 a.m. today.

Dead on arrival at Tigerton Hospital was Herman H. Hirt, 19, route 2, Tigerton.

Hospitalized are Laverne H. Wendi, 19, route 3, Tigerton, the driver; Michael H. Schertz, 18, route 1, Tigerton, and Irvin J. Arndt, 19, route 2, Tigerton.

Shawano County investigators said the accident occurred at the intersection of a town road and County Trunk EE at Split Rock.

Wendi was attempting to make a left turn, they said, when the car left the road and hit a power pole and the corner of a building.

Hirt was thrown from the car and was pinned under it. Al-wrecker was called from Tigerton to free the body.

Wendi and Arndt are hospitalized at Tigerton. Schertz was transferred to Theda Clark Hospital at Neenah with severe facial injuries.

Timothy G. Malcolm, 18, Monona, died early today and two other persons were hospitalized after a two-car crash on a multi-lane highway southeast of Madison.

Campus Site Change Passed by Assembly

Froehlich Rubs Defeat into Wound

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Assembly speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, got there first with the most.

In winning the fight to push through the state Assembly the Rogers bill to change the site of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, he was able to hold his troops almost completely in line, while picking up defectors from the Green Bay ranks and driving others into strategic retreat.

Froehlich won his first test vote on the bill authored by Assemblyman William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, four weeks ago in a 48-42 vote.

Tuesday evening he was able to rub the defeat even deeper into the Green Bay lawmakers, on a 55 to 37 vote.

Key to the Froehlich victory, ironically, were Democratic legislators coming to the aid of the Republican leader.

The roll call vote rendered Tuesday shows that Froehlich was able to win 26 Republican votes — including his own — for passage of the measure which he reportedly regards as the most important of the session.

Democrats gave him 29 votes and only 16 from the minority went to Green Bay.

But at least one of the Republican votes was again handed him in a tactical move designed to allow Green Bay area lawmakers to move reconsideration today and slow the transfer of the bill to the battleground in the senate.

Froehlich was able to convince 24 of his caucus mates, therefore, to vote with him on the matter.

But this time Republican caucus chairman Lawrence Johnson of Algoma, could not beat Froehlich within his own party circles. In the earlier key test vote, Johnson was able to outdraw Froehlich in the caucus and win four more votes from the men who had voted to make Froehlich speaker.

This time Johnson won 22 votes — possibly plus the hidden one that was given Froehlich.

The difference Tuesday

Bill Enters Senate on 55-37 Vote

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Picking up unexpected support, the bitterly fought bill to change the chosen site for the northeastern Wisconsin campus of the University of Wisconsin was passed by the Assembly Tuesday night in a vote of 55 to 37.

Although assemblymen spent an hour and a half in heated dispute about the most celebrated neighborhood political issue in current Wisconsin politics, they failed to message the bill to the state Senate immediately.

Green Bay lawmakers, however, declined an opportunity this morning to move for reconsideration of the vote, apparently in an effort to speed the bill to the state Senate, where they expect it will be decisively killed.

They fear that additional delays in sending the bill to the Senate could prevent the allotment of planning funds for the new campus at an August meeting of the State Building Commission.

The vote to send the bill immediately to the Senate had failed to get a required two-thirds majority Tuesday night, passing on a 60-32 roll call. Failure of the Green Bay lawmakers to call for reconsideration today means the bill will go straight to the Senate.

The bill, sponsored by Assemblyman William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, and backed ardently by Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton, cancels the decision of a site committee in favor of the Shorewood site on the east side of Green Bay and orders the campus to be developed on the site known as the Larsen Farms on the west side of that city.

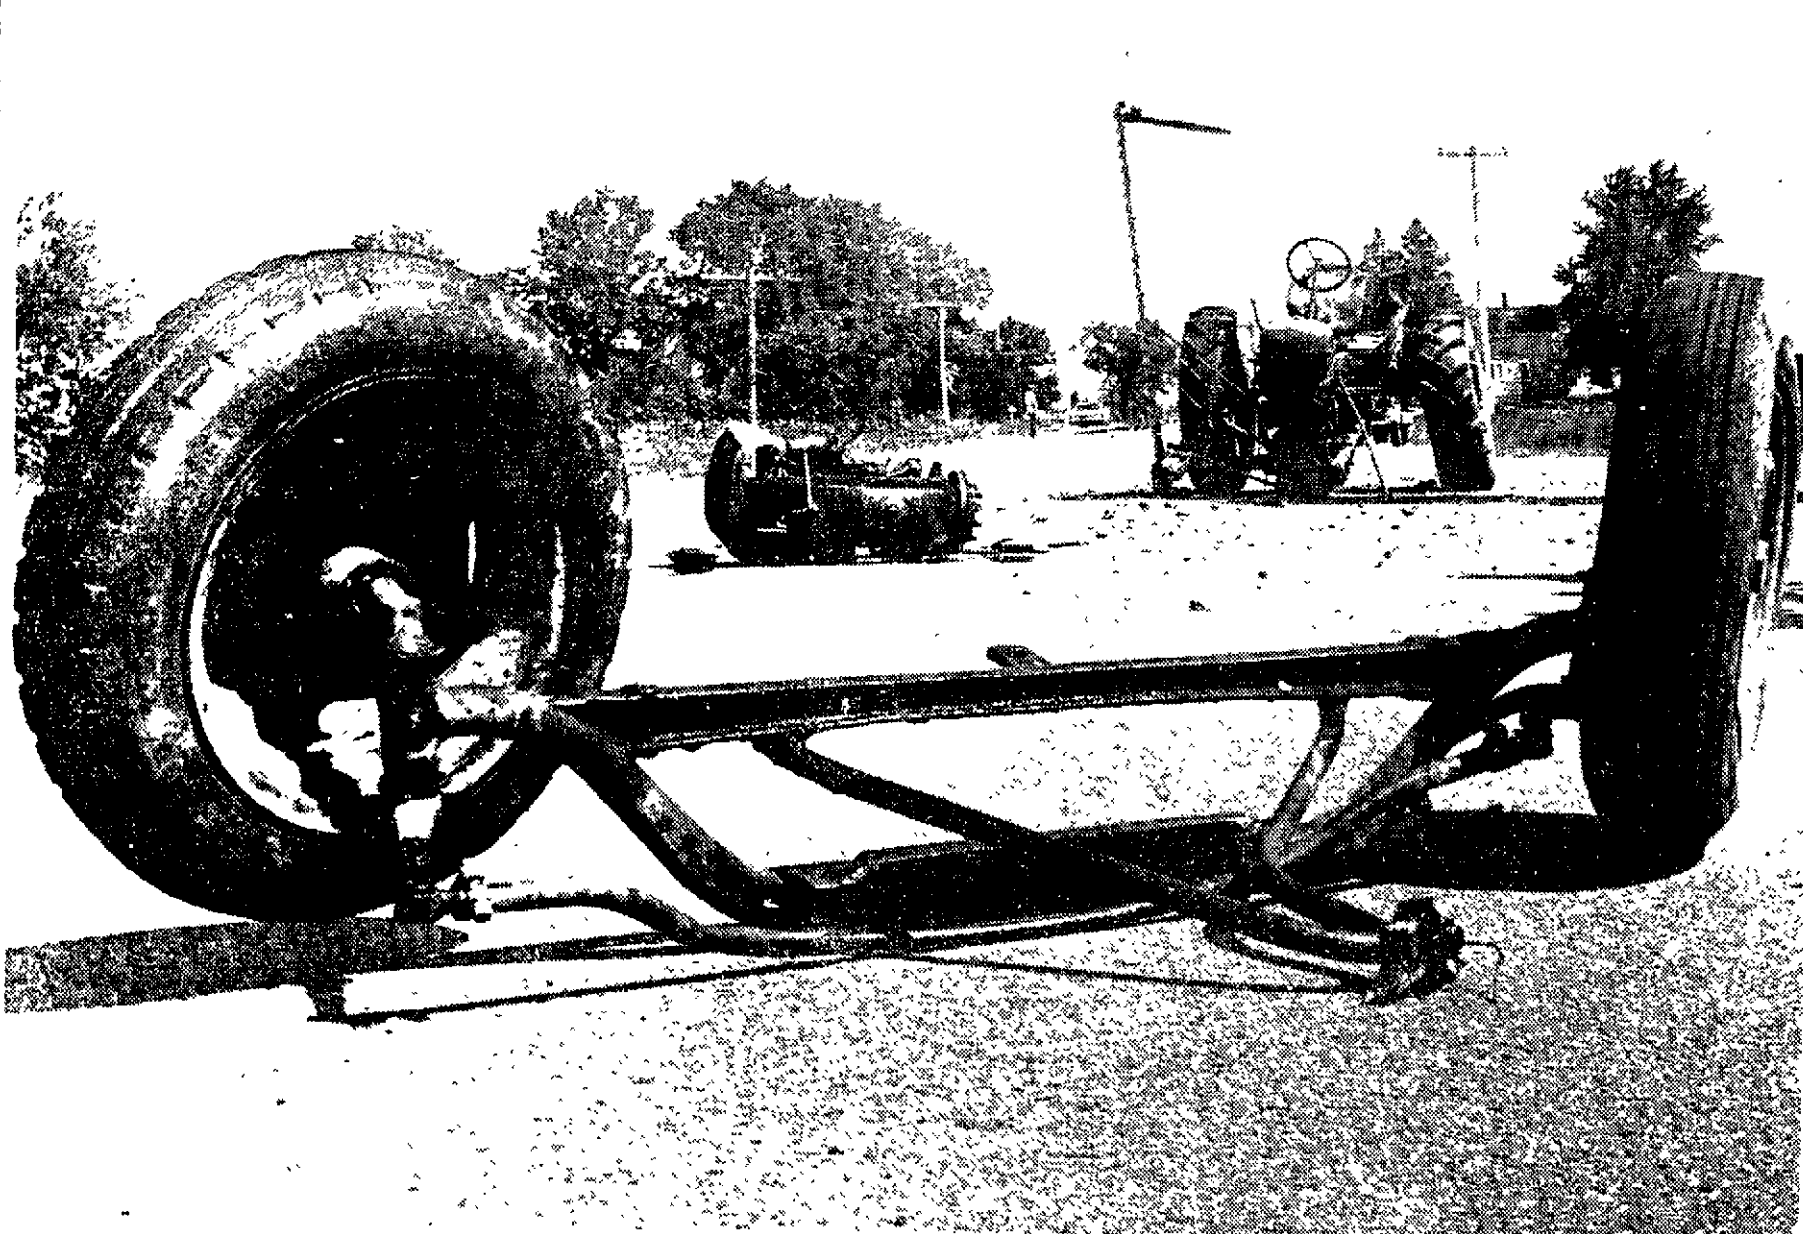

If the bill finally reaches the state Senate, as presumed, it will face a rocky road.

Most observers doubt that the upper house will support the site change. Moreover, if the senators were to concur with the Assembly, it is doubtful on the basis of his public comments that Gov. Warren P. Knowles would sign the change into law. University of Wisconsin officials are worried that even the fact of a legislative dispute about the location will interfere with their planning for the opening of the new school in the fall of 1969, and they were supported in that worry when the State Building Commission Monday failed to approve immediate additional financing for the construction plan.

Conversely, the Shorewood site decision may be in peril as a result of a lawsuit in the Dane County Circuit Court, sponsored by Outagamie County, that challenges the validity of the site selection procedure. The delay in the settlement of that litigation is also worrying the university administration.

The prolonged and passionate argument on the Assembly floor Tuesday resembled a neighborhood row in some respects.

Censure Resolution Sought

Israel, Egypt Clash on Land, Sea

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — New fighting between Egyptian and Israeli forces on land and at sea was reported on today as angry Moslem diplomats at the United Nations worked on a resolution to censure Israel for refusing to give up the Old City of Jerusalem.

Israel announced that Israeli naval units sank two Egyptian torpedo boats Tuesday in the first naval clash between the two nations since the Middle East war last month.

Off Egypt Town
An Israeli army spokesman said the engagement occurred in the Mediterranean about 16 miles off the occupied Egyptian town of El Arish when the Egyptian boats fired on a patrolling Israeli flotilla which included the destroyer Elath and two torpedo boats.

The spokesman said eight Israeli seamen were slightly wounded.

An Egyptian communiqué claimed that Israeli machine guns opened fire on Egyptian forces on the west bank of the Suez Canal south of Ismailia. The communiqué said Egyptian guns fired back and knocked out two Israeli armored cars. It said there were no Egyptian casualties.

The censure move led by Pakistani Ambassador Agha Shahi overshadowed intense behind-the-scenes negotiations on other possible resolutions as the General Assembly prepared to resume its emergency session on

Jerusalem despite the assembly resolution July 4 calling on Israel to rescind all measures of the holy places in the Arab "alter the status of sector."

Eban flew to New York Tuesday night to defend Israel's position against the heavy barrage of criticism expected in the assembly from Arabs, Soviet bloc diplomats and others.

The resolution July 4 was sponsored by Pakistan and was adopted 99-0 with 20 abstentions. The United States abstained, although the Johnson adminis-

Silent on Recommendations

McNamara, Johnson Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara kept secret today his recommendations on boosting U.S. troop strength in Vietnam, but hinted strongly at plans to get more combat power out of the forces already there.

In advance of a luncheon with President Johnson at the White House, McNamara refused to disclose what measures he will propose as a result of his ninth on-the-spot checkup of the U.S. military effort in Vietnam.

"I can't comment on what additional troops, if any, will be sent," the defense chief told newsmen who met him at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., where he arrived from Saigon just before midnight Tuesday.

He refused flatly to give any idea about the course of the air war, saying "I never comment on future operations."

The effectiveness of the bombing in North Vietnam was a prime topic during McNamara's conference with Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Vietnam, and other key American military leaders there.

McNamara re-stated what he said is a two-year-old policy this way: "What the military commanders feel necessary to carry out the military operations that are required to meet our limited political objectives in South Vietnam will be sent."

"I'm not pointing to any future troop increases — I just want to make perfectly clear the basis on which we consider troop requests," he stressed.

Westmoreland is reported to have asked for up to 140,000 more fighting men. Present U.S. strength in Vietnam stands at about 466,000.

Current Pentagon speculation centers on the possibility Johnson will approve possibly two more division forces, totaling possibly 70,000 men, spread over a period of months.

Army officials said they could handle such an increase, and possibly even a bigger one, by increasing the draft rather than calling up reservists.

tration had urged Israel not to annex the Old City.

The assembly can condemn or censure Israel, but only the U.N. Security Council can impose penalties. One proposal under consideration was to have the assembly ask the council to implement the July 4 resolution.

On the questions of Israeli troop withdrawals from Arab territory and future steps to stabilize the Middle East, the assembly remained divided, despite numerous efforts during the week's recess to find a compromise formula.

Without Conditions

One group, including the Arabs, the Soviet bloc and some so-called nonaligned countries, insisted that the assembly must call for the withdrawal of Israeli troops without any conditions attached.

Another group, including the United States, the Latin Americans and most of the Western powers, held that the withdrawal must be linked to an end to the state of war which the Arabs have maintained against Israel since 1948.

Among those offering compromise plans during the week were Spain and Cyprus, but neither side would budge on the major issues. The outcome may be adoption of a face-saving resolution avoiding the question of troop withdrawal and asking the secretary-general to name a personal representative to explore peace possibilities.

The old three-year contract expired July 1, according to John Weiland, a company spokesman, who said negotiations for a new contract had been underway for at least six weeks before the strike.

Mediation Failed

Federal mediators from Green Bay worked with management and union representatives to avert a strike last Thursday. However, a final offer made to Local 2185 was rejected, 162-42, and production workers voted 161-26 to walk out.

Workers reportedly asked for a 25 cent an hour wage increase, with a cost of living clause, and another three-year pact.

Company officials said they offered 15 cents, a two-year contract but did not go along with the cost of living proposal. No incidents have been reported along the picket lines.

Inches, Pounds Make a Difference

Tractors Tug to Open Fair

SEYMOUR — Inches made the differences in the 3rd annual tractor pulling contest here Tuesday night witnessed by a crowd estimated at 2,500.

The contest, sponsored by the Outagamie County Soil and Water Conservation Association, officially opened the 1967 county fair.

Numerous second pullings of the weighted boat were required throughout the night to offer spectators the equivalent of extra innings in excitement. None of last year's champions repeated and their record pulls were easily outdistanced.

The results by class in order of finish:

Brillion Paving Will Start Next Week

Completion Expected In 3 Weeks

BRILLION — A $50,500 street grading and repair project will begin next week and is expected to be completed in three weeks, Glen Campbell, director of public works, told the city council Monday.

Streets slated for the majority of the paving are Francis Street; E. Water Street near the new pumping station; Lee Avenue; Roselawn Drive and in the Second Stecker Addition Crews from Badger Highways, Inc., Menasha, are expected here this week, Campbell said.

Sealing work will add $2,600 to $3,120 to the $50,500 contract. Some streets will be sealcoated but the newer slurry seal will be applied where necessary.

Remove Poles

A request by Ray Kleiber of Brillion Iron Works, Inc. to have utility poles moved in the area of the proposed company trailer court was referred to the board of public works for investigation. Three poles on Glenview Ave., could be moved for $11,000 or the entire eight-pole-line could be moved for $17,000 according to figures Kleiber received from the Wisconsin Public Service Corp.

He told the city council moving three poles would solve the trailer court problem, but because city planners Candeub, Fleissig and Associates' propose to eventually make Glenview Avenue a thoroughfare, it might be advantageous to move the entire line now.

Kleiber, who also is chairman of the Brillion Housing Authority, told the council that the low-rent housing project for the elderly is progressing and a report from the housing authority is expected soon.

On recommendation of the finance Committee, the city band will receive $500 from their budget, as requested for new uniforms.

A $900 bill from Modern Water Equipment, a $250 bill from Pittsburgh Des Moines Steel Company and an $88 bill from McMahon Associates were referred to the utility commission for payment.

Award Contract

Bids on water main extension work will be tabulated and a contract awarded within a week. The three bidding firms are Bowers Brothers Construction Co. and J. N. Daul Construction, Inc. Kaukauna, and the Earl Ecker Construction Co., Chilton. Low bid was $2,955 and high bid, $3,260.

Councilmen studied sidewalk construction specifications and agreed that property owners are responsible for the area adjacent to new sidewalks after the contractor has backfilled. If a property owner insists that the city do the work, an assessment will be made.

On recommendation of the police and fire commission, signs will be posted on National Avenue, County Trunk PP, Horn Street and Lake Drive leading into the city, showing that the speed limit is 25 miles per hour. The ordinance committee and City Atty. Thomas Lucas were assigned to prepare the necessary ordinance.

Advertising will start for part-time police help, in line with another commission report that was approved.

In other council action, bartender licenses were okayed for Harold Jensen, Joe Krizer, esky, Carroll Tikalsky, Robert Thurnow and Norman Trucheben.

Accept Resignation

The council accepted the resignation of city building inspector Elmer Wenzel effective July 15. Wenzel, who has held the post since May, said the job is too time consuming.

A building permit for a new home was denied to Harold Jankin because the structure does not adhere to side-yard requirements. Rudy Besser's request for a permit to construct a garage was held in abeyance until he furnishes complete specifications.

"Action Program" and "General Plan" booklets have been received from Candeub, Flessig and Associates. Forty complimentary copies are being distributed this week; 30 copies will be sold at $5 per set, and 30 copies will be kept in the office of the city clerk.

City Clerk Lynn Williams reported the city has received a $2,596 telephone-tax apportionment.

20 Delegates

Wilbur Renk, Sun Prairie, chairman of the state Romney committee, said the committee hopes to win at least 20 Republican delegates for the Michigan governor in Wisconsin's April 1968 primary. Officials are trying to arrange an August visit to Wisconsin by Romney, who visited Appleton and Green Bay last month.

Wisconsin's primary has taken on added significance because of legislation passed recently which automatically places any man considered a potential candidate on the ballot. Wisconsin's primary is the first contest in the nation which pits all possible GOP contenders.

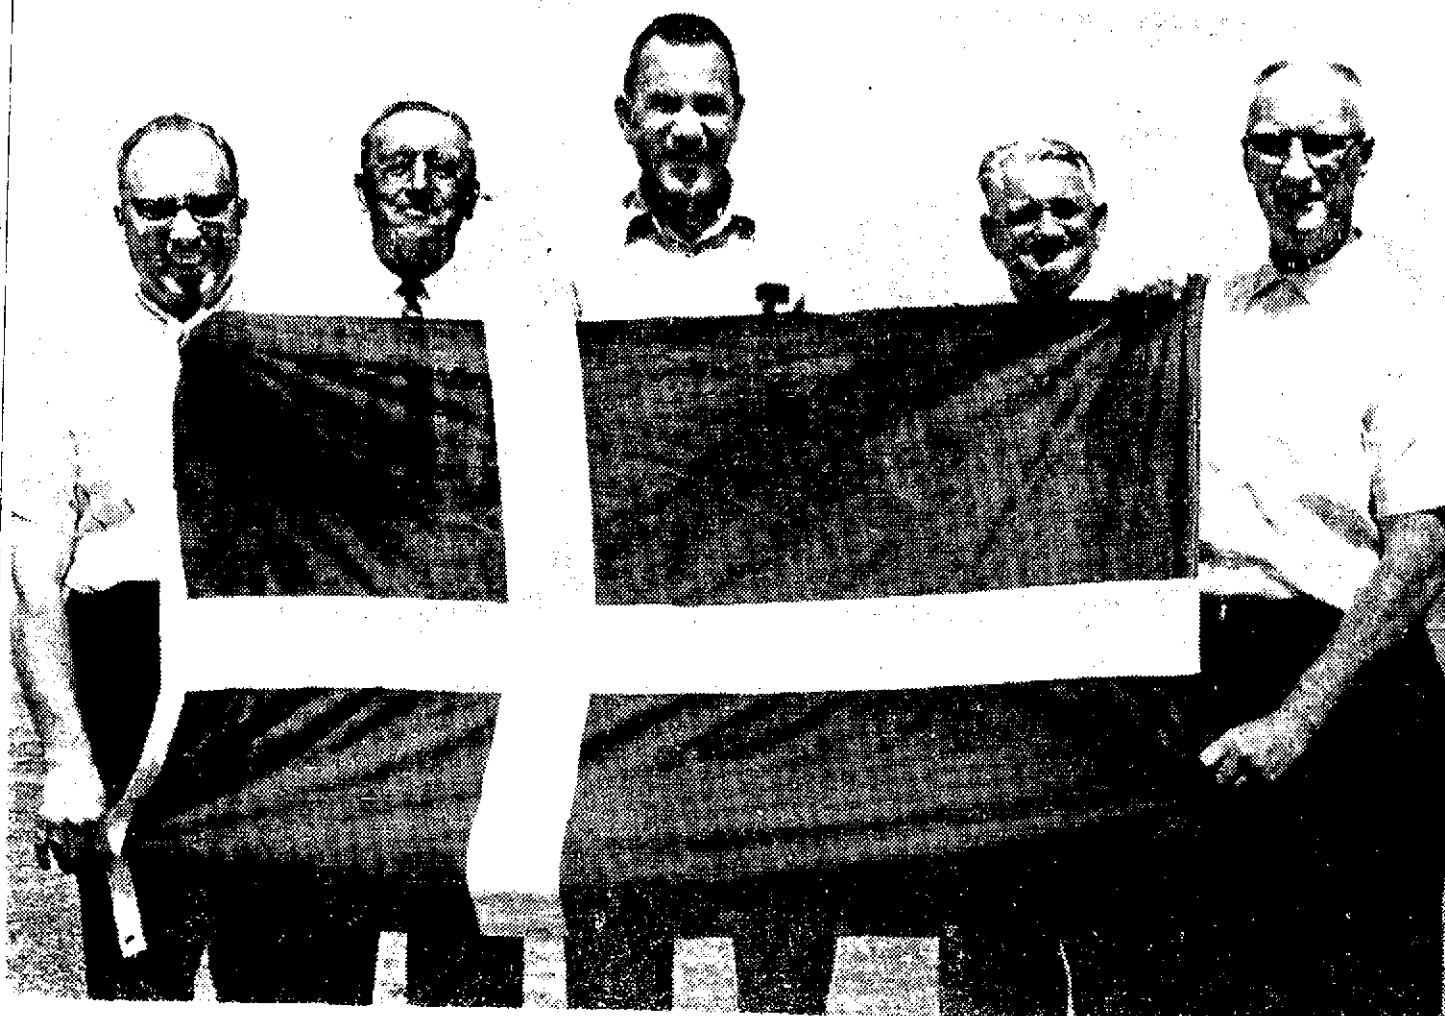

This has been referred to as a "laundry list primary." The only way a candidate can have his name removed from the ballot is through a written statement disclaiming his candidacy.

GOP Chairman

Edinger served as chairman of the Outagamie GOP for three years. He has been president of the Appleton PTA Council and executive secretary of Wolf River Country, Inc.

Before coming to Appleton, Edinger was executive secretary of the Artisan Chamber of Commerce.

The Republican county nominating committee will meet next week to make recommendations for a new president, according to Mrs. Peter Nelson, a county vice chairman.
